Eileen, Dear:

Do you realize that at the begening of next term you will be an old married woman and I'll be going to Unihi? Eileen, I'm going to miss you terribly, but we must keep in touch with each other. My little woman, not because I intend to make this the only time I'll wish you this, but because I think it would be rather appropriate here, here's wishing you the happiest and most successful marriage in the world. I think Howard is getting a very good deal, and you're not getting gypped either.

(You asked me for some thing more than "best wishes." Will this do?)

Eileen,

My attempt at expressing myself sincerely and rightly saying what I mean is going to look rather pitiful after Keaton's essay. I feel that our friendship is really worth holding on to, may it always be so, married though you may be. and concerning this, I know that it will be as successful as possible and you shall always be happy in it. I'm beginning to wander a little, perhaps I should cut this short and not attempt to equal Keats. Knowing me as you do, I know that you'll realize a lot more sentiment lies behind this than is expressed. All my love to a perfect, sweet woman. — Bernie

BE PREPARED! How often we hear this admonition, particularly in this age of education for democracy. Our leaders are drawn from those who have passed through the various levels of education and who have gained the technical knowledge which world experience molds to ripeness. It is in our junior high schools that we first have a taste of subjects which are a challenge to our abilities; it is here that we first form opinions and ambitions which have been created in the still barren and uncultivated land of our minds. High school is the second stage, a stage becoming more important with each quick, frantic breath of an uncertain world, a stage whose problems and opportunities hit home to us because we are the ones who must be prepared for what is to come.

Look through this book—your book—and see your past year laid out in terms of pictures and listed activities and be reminded of the next step in life—what will you make of it? It is a question of preparedness.

To Eileen -
Don't forget this:

$$(a+b)^n = a^n + \frac{n}{1}(a)^{n-1}(b) + \frac{n(n-1)}{1\cdot 2}$$

Lots of fun (if you want to call it that) we had in algebra II.

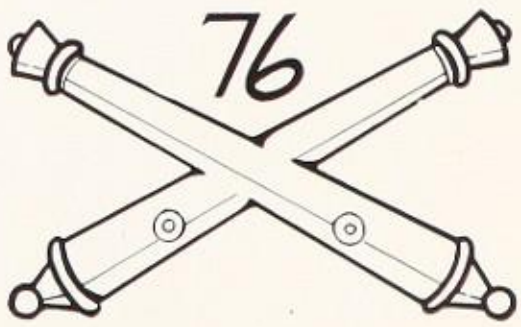
Dedication

WITH the stirring salute of "Retreat" hushed for another day, with the notes of a final "Taps" fading in the distance comes the remembrance of a man whose keen judgment and earnest helpfulness brought love and respect from all who knew him. Thus it is with mingled feelings of deepest sorrow and humble reverence that we dedicate our 1941 Colonial Annual to Major George H. Duff.



Major George H. Duff
March 8, 1893-August 8, 1940

Entered Federal Service in 1916; participated in five major engagements overseas; received a silver citation for bravery in action; served as Battalion Commander in the Field Artillery; began R.O.T.C. duty in Los Angeles in 1937.

Eileen darling!!!

I have had the most delightful years knowing "you" in High school. I hope I will get to know "Jack + Howard." I wish you all the lucko happiness in the world, and it comes from the bottom of my heart. I feel greatly honored to have the privilege of signing your annual. Really, I think you are the most super, perfect girl I know. I have told you some of my secrets + I feel honored to have shared in your "secrets" and be among the first to know of your most wonderful secret.

I know that Howard is certainly the luckiest "guy" in the world to get such a swell, colossal, wonderful girl.

Really + truly I wish you all the luck, happiest, + success in the world + you certainly deserve it.

Education is no longer only a matter of reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic as it once was, for now instructors and Board of Education officials are realizing the need for co-ordination between the home and school of the individual student.

Now, an assistant counselor aids in advising students, checking credits, and giving intelligence and vocational tests. There is a merit counselor who watches the merit records of all students, seeks the reasons for low merit records, and tries to prevent pupils from getting into trouble.

In addition, six committees of eight people headed by a co-ordinator have been formed to delve further into the causes of student difficulties and to correct these faults. The Co-ordinator of Professional Careers, along with his committee, meets, advises, and encourages students whose marks and abilities are in the upper bracket. He is to urge them to go on to college, for it is those people who make leaders in professional careers. On the other hand the Co-ordinator of Vocational Careers studies training programs in the fields of agriculture, home economics, industrial arts, and commercial pursuits with a view to strengthening and co-ordinating vocational guidance and training offered to students.

The Co-ordinator of Guidance spends approximately 30 per cent of her time arranging guidance activities and programs for the school as a whole, and spends the rest of the time with individuals, advising and encouraging. The task of the Co-ordinator of Attendance ties in with this quite closely, for he, too, watches the individual's problem with an eye to guidance, discipline, and co-ordination between school and outside interests.

Perhaps two of the most difficult jobs lie in the hands of the Co-ordinators of Health and Citizenship, since both are concerned with things over which the home of the individual has control. But they have done much toward improving student attitude and health by sponsoring assemblies, publishing bulletins, and by reaching students through clubs and other social organizations.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANTS

The school treasurer has a tremendous job on his hands, handling the finances of Fairfax. He makes up the budgets for the various departments, and sees that the expenditures do not get out of hand. It is his task to manage all the money for club pins, club dues, club annual pictures, special activities, dramatic production costumes, scenery, and properties, and innumerable other things, which go through the Treasurer's Office.

Mr. Detter's secretary is the efficient lady who handles the laborious detail work for Fairfax. She arranges the principal's appointments, helps him by taking care of all preliminary factors concerning appointments, and budgets his time carefully. Her work is connected with that of the Main Office.

The staff working in the Main Office executes the routine business end of Fairfax's management. It is here that the daily bulletin, which is read in every second period class, originates.

Probably the most fascinating place in Fairfax, from the standpoint of a new student, is the Attendance Office, where the Registrar and his assistants hold forth. In this office one may find the daily program, address, and phone number of any student enrolled at Fairfax. From this mainstay spring the newly organized Senior Problems Classes. Through attendance records there appeared a need for more individual instruction on the problems of Social Arts, Vocational Guidance (taught during the B12 semester), Consumers' Economics, and Family Relations (offered in the A12 semester). The Registrar is chairman of the activities of the Senior Problems classes.

Moving down the hall from the Attendance Office one comes upon the Book Room, from which text books are distributed to classes at the beginning of each year.

In the library, a civil-service clerk, assistant to the librarian and two W.P.A. assistants manage the in-coming and out-going books. Working together, they supervise the students work, attend to the clerical jobs such as filing, typing, and filling orders, manage the checking desk, do reference work, and, most tiresome of all, answer the unceasing questions of hundreds of pupils.

The outward appearance of Fairfax is kept beautifully neat by four able gardeners; we are all proud of the looks of our campus.

Well, little bride-to-be, I supposed you've learned order + neatness + patience (and just about everything) you need to know about keeping house) right here in the library, no? The best of wishes to you Howard — + if you need any advice, don't forget to come to me! I'm standing right at the front desk! P.S. - The first 10 years are the hardest!

Right Column Top to Bottom: Mr. J. N. Conway—School Treasurer. Mrs. C. Lewis—Secretary to Mr. Detter. Miss M. Martinez—Senior Clerk, Main Office. Mrs. L. Bernstein—Junior Clerk, Main Office. Mrs. B. Service Organizations

Colonial Council

The Colonial Council is the legislative body of Fairfax. Its main duties are to supervise the expenditure of the school funds, to create special committees which may be necessary for operation of the Colonial Assembly and for the benefit of student body activities, and to approve the constitutions and rules of subsidiary organizations formed under the school constitution.

Under the supervision and direction of Mr. Swan and Mr. Detter, the Council during the W'41 semester consisted of Hugh Herrick, President (Lord High Commissioner), Mary Louise Phillips, Vice-President (Assistant Lord High Commissioner), Christina Goldenberg, Secretary (Adjutant), and Ruth Babbitt, Treasurer (Chancellor of the Exchequer), Bill Burrill and Lorraine Sandberg, Presidents of the Boys' and Girls' Assize Courts, Bob Burns and Mary MacTague, Commissioners of the Boys' and Girls' Athletics, and James Turman, Town Crier, all of whom are elected by the entire student body; Jean Cunningham, President of the Girls' League, elected by the girls; John Reed, President of the Prometheans, elected by the Promethean Society; Marjorie Morein, President of the Guilders, elected by the Guilder Society; Elmer Lipsey, Lieutenant Colonel of the R.O.T.C., appointed by the instructor; and Charles Chamberlain, Commissioner of Oral Arts, James Hoyt, Commissioner of Clubs, George Western, Commissioner of Safety, Marcella Hardt, Commissioner of Publicity, Joyce Stupner, Commissioner of Advertising Arts, Barbara Shaw, school Historian, and Bernice Hackel, Editor of the Gazette, who are chosen by the Council.

Colonial Council

Among the accomplishments of the W'41 Council, with Lord High Hugh Herrick presiding, was the introduction of a new school Constitution, which had been written several terms before. This newer set of rules is more complete and more suited to the needs of Fairfax than was the other, and its ratification was an important step toward a finer Fairfax.

During the S'41 semester, Jim Hardy led the Council in revising the By Laws and the Code of Requirements for the new Constitution. The completion of this task meant another forward step in the improvement of Colonial government.

Forming the S'41 Council were Jim Hardy, Lord High Commissioner; Morton Wright, Assistant Lord High Commissioner; Lillian Roach, Adjutant; Gordon Pratt, Chancellor of The Exchequer; Kuni Yamamoto, president of the Boys' Assize Court; Peggy Tyer, President of the Girls' Assize Court; William Potapov, Commissioner of Boys' Athletics; Cailin Campbell, Commissioner of Girls' Athletics; Douglas Kinsey, Town Crier; Wynona Robings, President of the Girls' League; Bob Mautner, President of the Prometheans; Julie Gagne, President of the Guilders; Marshall Stowell, Lieutenant Colonel of the R.O.T.C.; Phil Schlaifer, Commissioner of Oral Arts; Anne Bretsfelder, Commissioner of Clubs; George Ballaseux, Commissioner of Safety; Beverly McFarland, Commissioner of Publicity; Bob Mace, Commissioner of Advertising Arts; Marilyn Rice, school Historian; and Marcella Hardt, Editor of the Gazette.

Girls' Assize Court

As the Boys' Assize handles the judicial business for the boys of Fairfax, so the Girls' Assize functions for the benefit of the Colonial ladies. Members work in cooperation with the other court, arranging the Clean Campus Campaign and taking over the lunch lines, as their main duties performed without the aid of the boys' Court. The organization and initial aim of the Girls' Assize follow the democratic plan of student government; yet they fit in with the colonial setting at Fairfax, since the entire court system is patterned after the early judicial groups of colonial America. The members act as a jury, which tries all cases brought before it and devises appropriate punishments. As well as benefitting the school, the court has a good influence on its members; it offers a challenge, it creates interest in school welfare, and best of all it inspires good citizenship. By way of relaxation from all their worries and work, the girls hold an annual picnic with the boys' Court. Presiding officers for the past year were Lorraine Sandberg and Peggy Tyer who were aided by the kind guidance of Miss Emma Wood.

Boys' Assize Court

To the Boys' Assize Court goes the task of conducting various campaigns in an effort to keep up the fine outward appearance and the fine inner spirit which have always been a part of Fairfax. The main purpose of the court, however, is to uphold law and order by practising the self-government of the Colonials. Offenders are fairly tried before a jury composed of their fellow students whom they themselves have elected. Members are popularly elected, a certain number being chosen from each grade, so that the entire student body is represented.

The court is a worthy organization, particularly in that it presents the opportunity for students to do the work which makes their school something to be proud of. This term the Boys' and Girls' Courts worked together more than ever, trying their cases as one court, rather than as two separate organizations. Acting as an able advisor to the presidents of the past year, Bill Burrill and Kuni Yamamoto, was the faculty sponsor, Mr. Roger Williams.

Alphas

Corresponding to the Knights is the girls' honor organization of Fairfax, the members of which are known as the Alphas. Sponsored by the girls' vice-principal, Mrs. Mildred R. Brown, this group is the hardest one of several honor societies in which to obtain membership. These fifteen girls are chosen from the A11, B12, and A12 on the basis of character, scholarship, and leadership, and in accepting the membership, they accept a vast amount of work; at the same time, however, they attain the highest peak of success. The work of the Alphas is spread far and wide, for in addition to helping the Knights register new pupils, they give their cooperation to the Hammel Street Drive and other charitable work of the school. The semi-annual tea at the end of each term, which is given for the purpose of acquainting prospective students with Fairfax, is arranged entirely by the Alphas. With the Knights they escort the new students around school, and they sponsor a dance which is a means by which still more strangers may become acquainted.

The group has no constitution and so no written rule for the electing of officers, but it has always been the custom to elect as president a Senior A girl who has been an Alpha at least one term and who holds no other major office in school. This policy is an example of their sense of fairness and honor. The girls who officiated during the last two terms were Natalie Burres and Helen Weight.

Knights

"For the honor of the school" the Knights are in existence—the outstanding boys' service organization. Sponsored by the Vice-Principal, Mr. D. S. Swan, the Knights uphold the highest ideals of good scholars, hard workers, and fine personalities. The fifteen members of this group cooperate with students and faculty in every possible way. They assist the teachers by enrolling new pupils at the beginning of each term; in turn, they guide the new-comers about until everyone is straightened out. When the annual Hammel Street Apple and Orange Drive comes around, the Knights devote their time and energy to helping the Alphas collect fruit for the kiddies at Hammel. Too, their services are indispensable during the Community Chest Drive, the Red Cross Collection, and the Infantile Paralysis March of Dimes. These Knights take on an immense responsibility as well as an honor when they become one of the group, for they are in a showcase, so to speak, watched and admired constantly; they represent the goal of every boy in school, and they must fill their positions with ease and graciousness—all of which trains them further for adult thinking and intelligent action. Fulfilling the greatly desired office of president, who is known as the Chief-Knight, were John Reed, W'41, and John Beauchamp, S'41. At the end of each term the old members give a dinner for those who are newly chosen.

Servitors

The Servitors organization was planned so that those who placed second in the student-body elections might still have an opportunity to serve the school. This group provides an answer to the question of how to utilize the talents and abilities of these students, for while there are not enough offices in student government to be given to every deserving pupil, a place can always be found for a good worker. Servitors are kept busy by helping with the many drives and campaigns which are conducted at Fairfax; their main objective is to show the true friendly spirit of Fairfax and to help those who are having difficulty in fitting in with the scheme of things. Under the guidance of Mr. Detter, it has grown to be an active group which keeps its capable members busy. Acting as leaders of the club for the past year were Christina Goldenberg, W'41, and Kenneth Smith, S'41.

Ephebians

All through the years of high school, every student works his way up to the great day of graduation, each preparing himself in his own way for that day. Those who choose to prepare themselves by making their school the most important thing in life, by being hard workers, good citizens and leaders, and by serving Fairfax whenever an opportunity arises are rewarded when the Ephebian Society of Los Angeles selects its members. This is a city-wide honor society for high school students, the members of which are selected from each graduating class in the proportion of one to forty. The method of selection is through the students and faculty both; pupils in the highest ten per cent of the class scholastically are considered for the honor and are voted upon by the senior class first as a system of elimination, after which faculty members cast their votes. Upon their selection, these Ephebians take an oath to be finer citizens and to do all in their power as individuals to better our government. Even though Fairfax has been represented in this organization only a few terms, all students strive to be worthy of it.

Girls' League

Every girl, when she enrolls in Fairfax, automatically becomes a member of the Girls' League, which stands behind the philanthropic work of the school. Its aim is to raise money through dances, collecting dues, and other activities to take food and clothing to the unfortunate children at Hammel Street School, a large grammar school in one of the poorer districts on the East Side, which is the adopted school of Fairfax. Although it is a girls' organization, the boys as well as members of the faculty are generous with their help. Each second period class chooses a girl to represent it in the various drives the League sponsors. After having been a representative two terms, a girl is eligible to become a member of the cabinet, which is an executive board consisting of eleven girls who meet each week with the sponsor to map out their program. The sponsor for the past few years has been Miss Mabel Myers who worked during the fall term with a cabinet consisting of Jean Cunningham, President; Elizabeth Hawkins, Vice-President; Eleanor Boyer, Secretary; Marie Chandler, Treasurer; Maureen Marohn, Commissioner of Finance; Beverly Thomas, Commissioner of Properties; Jo Lou Duckett, Commissioner of Publicity; Kay Hauger, Assistant Commissioner of Publicity; Wynona Robings, Commissioner of Philanthropy; Doreen Bayley, Assistant Commissioner of Philanthropy; and Gloria Spitzer, Commissioner of Assemblies.

This very efficient board led the girls of Fairfax in the Doll Drive to provide and dress eight hundred dolls for Hammel Street children, the Old Clothes Drive for Hammel Street and England, and the sending of Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets to Hammel. The Cabinet members enjoyed several informal social gatherings, including a luncheon at the president's home and a tea given by Miss Myers.

During the summer semester, the League sponsored the Hi-Day Dance for the benefit of new students, the Old Toy Drive, and the Aloha Dance for the Senior A's. In addition it gave $75.00 for shoes for Hammel Street children, and presented a motion picture, "First Love," the proceeds of which went to charity. A novel idea worked out by the summer president was a fashion show, given for the girls, presenting student models from each grade. At the same time came the redecoration of the Girls' League rest room, all new furnishings being supplied by Barker Bros.

The leaders of these activities were Wynona Robings, President; Beverly Thomas, Vice-President; Jo Lou Duckett, Secretary; Maureen Marohn, Treasurer; Kay Hauger, Commissioner of Finance; Kaye Church, Commissioner of Properties; Marjorie Kennedy, Commissioner of Publicity; Barbara Davis, Assistant Commissioner of Publicity; Doreen Bayley, Commissioner of Philanthropy; Dana Rinaldo, Assistant Commissioner of Philanthropy; and Pat Bowe, Commissioner of Assemblies.

For those students who excel in scholarship at Fairfax there is the Promethean Society. The requirements for membership are three A's in preparatory subjects and not lower than a B in each non-preparatory class. As club activities, several members are sent to represent Fairfax at the California Scholarship Federation Convention held at Occidental College each term, and an annual picnic is given at the last of May. To become a life member of the California Scholarship Federation a student must be a member of the school's scholarship group for four semesters, one of which is in the Senior year. In reward for their accomplishments and services, the Prometheans are presented with a pin which changes each semester, the first term's pin being bronze, the sixth a gold pin set with three rubies. Because sponsoring this society is such a tremendous task, Miss Lillian Thielen and Miss Deborah Walsh have worked together as sponsors for the past few terms. At the head of the Prometheans during the year were John Reed, W'41, and Bob Mautner, S'41.

Guilders

As the Promethean Society was organized for those who are especially fine in academic subjects, so the Guilders is the society for the skilled artisans of Fairfax. To be eligible for membership, a student must have taken one of the art subjects for at least two terms and must be recommended by his teacher to the Guilders, who consider the names submitted to them; the final selection lies with them, of course. The Guilders include those who are outstanding in Drama, Music, Art, Mechanics, Agriculture, Horticulture, Mechanical Drawing, Electricity, etc. Their organization is patterned after that of the Prometheans although their activities are not so extensive since they are a new group, having been in existence only a few terms. When Mrs. Mildred R. Brown, who sponsors the Alphas, four years ago originated the idea of an honor society for practical artists, Fairfax eagerly took it up, deciding upon Mr. Paul Bultmann, auto shop instructor, as faculty supervisor. Many other schools have since followed the example set by Fairfax in having such an organization. The Guilders' arrangement of awarding pins, increasing in value from the first to the sixth term, corresponds to that of the Prometheans.

During the summer semester, the main activity of this group was arranging the annual hobby show which is put on for the purpose of exhibiting the artistic efforts and abilities of Fairfax students. New entrance requirements were worked out for this year's show, and more students entered than ever before, displaying work of the hands. All departments which are represented in the Guilders took part. The crafts eligible for display included cooking, sewing, fabric printing, block printing, commercial and advertising art work, sketching, oil painting, water color painting, photography, flower arrangement, potted plant arrangement, cabinet making, radio work, furniture making, wood carving, metal finishing, leather stamping, and numerous others—anything of artistic value. The show ran a week with an open house at night for the parents; three honorary awards were given for the best exhibits. Supervising all Guilder activities for the past year were the able presidents, Marjorie Morein and Julie Gagne.

Class of Winter '41

Displaying all the pomp and dignity which befit Senior A's, the "Leolanis," under the supervision of Miss Esther Halgren, reigned over the W'41 semester at Fairfax. Choosing blue and gray as their colors, they attended the Community Chest Assembly at the beginning of the term in full array—wearing their sweaters for the first time.

Much credit is to be given this class for leading the other classes in maintaining the traditional Fairfax spirit and interest in school activities. The perpetuation of this student spirit was threatened because of limitations decreed by new restrictions, but the Leolanis reacted admirably, setting a fine example for the lower division pupils. Both the boys and girls participated in athletic and scholastic contests and each time showed true superiority by defeating the Senior B's.

By way of social activities, the W'41 class was entertained by speakers from Metropolitan Business College, Frank Wiggins Trade School, and U.C.L.A. The Seniors bid farewell to their Alma Mater by giving the customary Aloha Dance with Dorothy Ashworth and Jimmie Stevens being the popular King and Queen of the day.

Their interests went beyond the boundaries of the social whirl, however. Sufficient proof of this was given when eight Senior A's received the honor of Ephebian membership. In addition, Fairfax is proud to note that this graduating class will be represented at the D.A.R. Convention which is to be held in Washington, D. C. Jean Cunningham was selected as the representative, and when she goes, she will carry with her the best wishes of every Leolani that all who meet her may recognize the fine calibre of Fairfax alumni.

Class of Summer '41

During the past semester, the Seniors of '41 gained the respect and admiration of the entire student body by setting a fine pace in social activities as well as in scholastic accomplishments. At their meetings, the "Eagles" were addressed by speakers from Woodbury College, U.C.L.A., Los Angeles City College, Frank Wiggins Trade School, and Metropolitan Business College. Senior activities were begun with a grand flourish at the showing of the motion picture, "Lost Horizon," and the challenges to girls' and boys' basketball and baseball games and a Senior sack rush, made by the W'42 Commodores, were met successfully.

Supplementing their patriotic name and at the same time carrying out the school theme of the year, the Eagles chose red, white, and blue as their class colors. Very impressive indeed were the white sweaters with the bright red and blue eagle emblem. This class's showing of patriotism and good citizenship is due largely to the efforts of its sponsor, Miss Jessie Lickel.

Highlight of the Eagles' social season was the Farmer Day Dance, at which the girls appeared in gingham, while the boys wore corduroy or were attired in something equally characteristic of "way down on the farm." In addition to this, the traditional Aloha Dance, held at the end of the term, was a huge success.

In order to display the versatile abilities of members of the Senior classes, the Senior Extravaganza was given. This musical comedy production, which is presented annually, furthered the theme of Americanism by bearing the title—"Yankee Doodle Presents."

The Colonial

Throughout most of the spring semester, room 160, known more affectionately as the Annual Office, was kept in a state of orderly confusion and subdued uproar by the conscientious 'though noisy efforts of the Annual staff.

Under the supervision of Mr. Harry C. Underwood, the Annual kids dug in early this year to avoid the usual last minute deluge of copy and pictures which has, in past times, caused so many headaches. They got by with reasonably few, however, due largely to the patient kindness of Mr. Underwood, who spared no effort to make the work as pleasant and as beneficial as possible to every member of his staff. Too, he deserves much credit for putting out a book with a thoroughly inexperienced group of students to work with. Having only one member who had assisted with the 1940 Colonial, Betty Flude, he began this year with four other students whose work was new to him—Betty Hawn and Steve Crosby, A-11 students, and Peggy Tyer and Charles Chamberlain, Senior A's. No definite positions were given to anyone; at the beginning of the term Mr. Underwood explained his method of choosing the editor and assistant editors, the title being given to the person who proved to be the most interested and most capable.

Betty Flude unfortunately was unable to work on the staff after the first few weeks, because of serious illness which took her out of school, but the entire staff remembers with gratitude how she led the way during the first days of experimenting and learning.

Betty Hawn was put in charge of pictures, checking and rechecking the lists of hundreds of names, which are so important in the final putting together of a book.

One of the most laborious tasks was taken over by Steve—that of transferring the page layouts into the dummy (for the benefit of all who are beginning to wonder, the "dummy" is the layout book into which we put all picture and copy proofs). Steve was the victim of all the changes made in this year's Annual, for if he remade and re-numbered those pages once, he did it 10 times, and although he always held his head and gave forth woeful groans when anyone neared the precious layouts, he did his job cheerfully, never complaining except in fun.

The credit for the write-ups in the 1941 Colonial goes to Peggy and Chuck and to the Sports Editor, Howard Dupuis, who started off on the right foot by getting most of his sports copy in during the first two weeks.

After Peggy was chosen editor, in the middle of the term, she made an attempt to teach the other members of the staff to read proof—when she had learned herself. The staff was kept hopping, too, during those days in early May, when there were more deadlines to meet than there were paper clips on the floor of good old 160. They were way ahead of schedule at the beginning of the semester, but something happened (they never did find out what).

That was not true of the business staff, however—they stuck to their schedule of selling and distributing Annuals. And for that we owe a vote of thanks to Mr. Melvin J. Isenberger who supervised a staff consisting of Peggy Hasencamp, business manager, Joan Hemmings, and Roy Powers, advertising manager. Mr. Fred E. Wesson's salesmanship class was responsible for the actual selling of the books, and it did a grand job, for which Mr. Underwood, Mr. Isenberger, and the entire staff are grateful.

As for the art work, which was directed by Mrs. Helen Mellini, Betty Goodan, together with Carmelita Garceau and Roy Scriven, Art Editor, generously offered her talents to help liven the book with decorative sketches for sections and division pages.

A great deal of credit for the success of the Annual goes to Mr. John Morley and Mr. Waldo Edmunds, whose help with the page layouts was invaluable. Mr. Morley, representing the printer, appeared at the office door regularly on Mondays to consult with the editors on layouts and write-ups. It was via Mr. Edmunds that all the picture panels reached the engraver.

Many of the informal shots for the Colonial were taken by Seymour Porter and Phil Seberger, official staff photographer; the taking of the group pictures was done by Mr. Barkin, photographer from Witzel's Studio.

The Colonial Gazette

Throughout the school year of 1940-1941, the Colonial Gazette was modernized in form and appearance under the supervision of Bernice Hackel, editor for the winter semester, and Marcella Hardt, the summer editor with the aid of Mrs. Jessie Stromberger, and Mr. M. C. Jones, instructors.

During the fall semester Marjory Kennedy was made editor of the news page while Beverly McFarland had the editorial page under her direction. Harvey Epstein and Lee Holcomb served in the same capacities in the spring. Jean Cunningham, Phyllis Emmerman, and Arthur Conn helped to make the Gazette a more newsy weekly, while Ruth Fabian's feature stories added an angle of color and human interest. Many of last year's columns were discontinued to make way for more news, interviews, and other interesting features. An experiment with new types of heads was successfully carried out this spring. The staff has sincerely tried to make this year's paper of genuine value to every student and faculty member.

Allan Sherman originated a popular humor column called the "Witz-Krieg," at the beginning of the year. Bernice Hackel titled her editor's column "Edi-facts" which dealt, during the semester, with the Community Chest Drive, sportsmanship, silence in the halls, and an adieu to all of her staff members. "Straight from the Hardt," Marcella's column, featured a series on "Fantasia" and the Walt Disney studios as well as the activities of all of the members of the Colonial Council. The social affairs of prominent Colonials were recorded weekly in the Social Lion which has always been one of the most popular columns in the Gazette. Many interesting "Inquiring Reporter" features were written throughout the year on vital student topics by Phyllis Emmerman and Beverly McFarland.

The fine coverage of sports news the first semester was supervised by Doug Diltz while Leonard Monheimer wore the shoes of the sports editor for the latter part of the school year. Howard Dupuis, Jack Bradley, Bill Potapov, and Arthur Bass have been highly praised for their colorful sports stories and columns. Jo Lou Duckett and Orline Colquhoun were responsible for the articles written about the Girls' Athletic Association and other girls' sports activities.

Harold Brahms had charge of advertising and Morton Maron of mailing and circulation for both semseters. Seymour Porter and Bernard Abramson served as staff photographers.

The Gazette placed second in this year's competition for the Crombie Allen award which is given annually to the high school newspaper that shows the greatest improvement over a period of one year. According to the judges of the contest the greatest change was on the editorial page; the Fairfax Weekly was also made more readable, artistic, and attractive, and in addition used articles of more variety and enterprise. The Gazette was only three points behind the winning paper.

Far from least is the group which has charge of school publicity for outside papers and which is directed by the Commissioner of Publicity. Marcella Hardt served in this capacity the first semester, and Beverly McFarland took over the reins in February.

Colonial Voices

Each year a Creative Writing Yearbook is published by Fairfax. It includes short stories, essays, poetry, picturesque speech, and other types of literature, all of which are originally written by members of the student body.

The organization of the "Colonial Voices" is handled entirely by students. Anyone who wishes to do so may submit material for consideration by the editors; when the selection has been made, the authors are notified so that they may have the last word as to any changes made in their writings. There are creative writing classes which contribute greatly to the Yearbook, but the members of this class by no means monopolize it, for no person is allowed to have more than five creations published.

To direct the publishing of "Colonial Voices" a staff of from two to four students is chosen by Mr. H. L. Goddard, head of the English Department and faculty advisor of the Yearbook. The editors of the 1941 book were Peggy Tyer and Marian Guntrup, who worked for a year preparing it, the first term reading and selecting material and the last term assembling the writings, and working with the Art Department on illustrations for stories and poems. The sales and distributing were handled ably by the business manager, Virginia Friedman, the book coming out just before the Christmas Holidays.

This year Mr. Goddard is planning to choose the editorial staff in the fall term, so that the Yearbook will be a Spring publication and will be distributed late in May.

This publication is a fine thing in that it offers to pupils an opportunity to develop their creative talents and at the same time puts before them a piece of work which presents culture and gives a good picture of student ability.

With the hope of an interclass championship foremost in every mind, the Colonial orators under the able supervision of Mrs. H. M. Smith devoted most of their time the first semester to the Interclass Debate Tournament.

The topic debated throughout the semester was "Resolved: That the Democracies of the World Should Form a Union to Insure Future Peace."

The tournament included 12 teams composed largely of lower grade students, and was managed by Chuck Chamberlain, Commissioner of Oral Arts. In a well contested final debate, Sheldon Freed and Nathan Berinstein, upholding the negative, defeated Sheldon Bay and Ralph Pansek, speakers for the affirmative.

In the second main speaking activity, the city wide Herald Extemporaneous Oratorical Contest, Morton Wright took third place honors. He was chosen from a group of 8 Colonial aspirants to represent Fairfax in the final competition.

During the second semester, with Mr. F. Ambrose acting as debate coach and Phil Schlaifer as Commissioner of Oral Arts, speaking activities aroused much interest.

In addition to the debate tournament, Colonial speakers entered several interscholastic events. Adele Vorzimer was Fairfax's representative in the Bankers' Oratorical Contest, while Allan Sherman and Morton Wright took part in the L.A.C.C. Contest, Allan entering the competition in Dramatic Declaration and Morton in Original Oratory.

An innovation during the spring was a speakers' Forum organized by Phil Schlaifer in which many students took part. Those participating in the group of panel discussions were Jack Spicer, Jim Roberts, Chandos Rypinski, Allan Sherman, Chuck Chamberlain, Frank Wood, and Morton Wright.

Mrs. A. McLaughlin

Mrs. F. H. Bower, head of the Music Department, Mrs. H. Aid, Mrs. A. McLaughlin, and Mr. C. Y. Smith are in charge of cultural progress in Fairfax, as far as music is concerned. Working together and with other members of the faculty, they provide the students with opportunities to receive musical background, and at the same time present enjoyable programs in assemblies.

Probably the most advanced group of singers is the A Cappella Choir which is directed by Mrs. Bower. This is a mixed group, which sings unaccompanied at all times; a pupil may become a member of the Choir only by try-out. The Choir is used largely for the Christmas Program, produced annually in December, and it is widely praised for its beautiful interpretation of the numbers.

The Girls' Glee Club and the Boys' Glee Club sing the type of music which is accompanied. Mrs. Aid and Mrs. McLaughlin have raised the standard of music through these two groups by training them not only as groups but as individuals, giving each member an opportunity to show his ability as soloist. Members for the glee clubs are selected after regular try-outs, and when they are chosen they are privileged to buy a sweater with the Fairfax Glee Club emblem on it. Aside from furnishing entertainment for all Colonials throughout the year, the Glee Clubs have social activities among themselves, thereby gaining more than musical knowledge from membership in these groups.

Mr. Smith makes his contribution through the orchestra of Fairfax. The people who are in the orchestra are constantly working to improve their musical technique and to perfect more and more orchestrations, for it is their task to accompany all programs presented in assemblies and all dramatic productions which require musical accompaniment.

The spring semester is by far the busier for all the musical organizations, since the Extravaganza, put on annually by the Senior Classes, comes in the spring. Fairfax's Glee Club, A Cappella Choir, and Orchestra unite their efforts to work with Miss Jamgochian's drama group in order to make the spring revue a spectacle.

Drama

SENIOR PLAY

In the fall semester of each year, the advanced Drama class, made up of students who have had from two to four terms of Drama, presents the Senior Play. For a number of years, Miss Araxi Jamgochian, dramatics coach, has produced and directed these presentations, raising the standard of drama at Fairfax each year. This year, moreover, she attempted one of the most difficult plays ever given by school amateurs—"Tovarich."

The story, which was originally written in the French by Jacques Deval and adapted by Robert E. Sherwood, begins in a Parisian garret where an exiled general of Cossack cavalry, portrayed by Ricardo Montalban, and his wife, an Imperial Grand Duchess of Russia, enacted by Peggy Tyer, are making a gay go of rags and hunger. Their poverty is purely voluntary, however, for in the Bank of France they have the sum of four billion francs which was entrusted to them by the late Czar to be used in the best interests of their sovereign. Faced with starvation, they go to work as a maid and butler for a bourgeois banker's family, their identities a secret until a Soviet Commissar, who had been responsible for most of the torture and indignity they'd suffered before their flight from home, appears and recognizes them. The three meet—the proud Duchess and General and the hated Commissar who has come to win away the huge fortune to save the Russian oil fields from foreign powers. Then follows the supremely gallant, most appealing scene in the entire play. They become comrades, the Russia of yesterday, today, and tomorrow unite in love of their own country, and the audience relinquishes a few tears in admiration of this delightful philosophy so radiantly depicted.

Besides the leads, there was a fine supporting cast which included Warren Burr, June Crocov, Jack Levin, Beverly Michelson, Harold Rosenbloom, Jane Guttman, Milton Cohen, Bradley Skeels, Tom Houser, Gloria Spitzer, Beverly Riess, and Joyce Davidson. Their excellent portrayals of smaller roles added just the needed touch to make the performance a polished one.

Highlight of the show was the fencing scene between Ricardo and Jack Levin. Moreover, the production was enriched by the use of four lavish sets which is indeed unusual for an amateur staging. The entire student body as well as those who had the grand experience and fun of taking part in the play are grateful to all who made it possible, and especially to Miss Jamgochian for "Tovarich."

SENIOR EXTRAVAGANZA

Modernistic in the fact that it betrayed Fairfax tradition for the second time, this year's Extravaganza was received with enthusiasm and sincere enjoyment. Miss Araxi Jamgochian's advanced drama class, together with Miss Dorothy Wilson's dancing group and the musical organizations, presented, instead of the usual musical comedy plot, a revue which followed the theme of the school year and the thought behind everyone's mind—America and love of our country.

"Yankee Doodle Presents" opened with a fan fare and a flourish of voices singing "America Is Calling," and such was the spirit of the entire production—fast moving, lively action with a surprise at every rise of the curtain.

After sufficient historical background of this nation had unfolded before the eyes of the spectators, the skillfully presented skits carried the audience on an imaginary jaunt across the United States, winding up at the celebrated Army and Navy Ball. Climaxing this breath-taking, beautifully executed review of America was a parade of lovely girls, accompanied by David Stevens' serenade "Lovely to Look At," and a finale with the entire cast appearing to sing a tribute to the good old U.S.A., led by the red, white, and blue chorus.

Two masters of ceremony created atmosphere for the production, Allen Sherman introducing the first Act, and Hal Rosenbloom opening the show and presenting Act II. Causing hilarious outbursts from the audience and bringing comedy to the Extravaganza, a patriotic burlesque introduced King George III of England and George Washington as blackface characters with Allen Sherman and Warren Burr outdoing themselves. A choral interpretation of "Hooray for Hollywood" took us onto the scene of a studio lot, where we met Gracie Allen, impersonated by Natalie Rosenfield, who proved to be a bright spot in the show, popping up time after time when we least expected her. A jitterbug number and a regular old-fashioned square dance gave everyone a view of two distinctly different sides of American life. The "Yankee Doodle Boys," a small chorus, led by Jon Hall, were delightful and a grand climax to Act I of "Yankee Doodle Presents."

Act II started off with a bang and continued in the spirited vein of the first part. A cleverly arranged medley of college songs was presented, with several of the better known universities being represented. The highlight at this spot was of a more serious nature—a reading of "Fabulous Country," skillfully rendered by Morton Wright, accented by unusual musical and lighting effects.

A floor show for the sake of sheer entertainment introduced, among others, Betty Goodan, Merle Nickels, Betty Baker, Jack Levin, Nancy Frye, Jack Pippin, Barbara Williams, Warren Burr, Gerry Farnum, and Roy Powers in a waltz; Helen Michelson, Phyllis Huffine, Madaleine Fuller, Eloise James, Joan Hemmings, Frances Walders and Lyla Goldman in "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans," a soft-shoe tap. All piano accompaniment was handled ably by Doris Playsted, Richard Jenkins, and Jean Caprine.

Queen of the Extravaganza was Phyllis Huffine, whose selection as "Miss Yankee Doodle" was publicized by those who worked behind the scenes of the production.

R. O. T. C.

The battalion passes in review—cadet officers listening tensely for the next command, "noncoms" whispering hurried instructions to men in ranks, privates changing step frantically to conform with the unit ahead. It is these small, seemingly unimportant things which give a unit the fine spirit, the strong morale which has proven all-important in the year's activities of the Fairfax R.O.T.C.

The Fairfax Reserve Officers' Training Corps is a branch of the Junior R.O.T.C. which includes all high schools and military prep school units under army supervision. The Fairfax unit, previously made up of two companies, was expanded this year to include a third, "C" Company. It is quite surprising that the enrollment should increase during the first year of the new ruling that R.O.T.C. is to be entirely elective for tenth grade boys rather than compulsory.

During the first semester Lieutenant Clark Witman served as head instructor. Second semester Lieutenant Colonel C. E. Ide took command when Lieutenant Witman was ordered to full-time duty at Roosevelt High School. Colonel Ide is a native of New York State and a graduate of Yale University. Upon graduating from Yale, Colonel Ide took an examination for his army commission which he received in 1909. It is a surprising fact that during his first twenty years of service the Colonel was transferred from one station to another 22 times. Among the posts at which Colonel Ide has served are Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, Fort Stotsenburg in the Philippines, and Fort Moultrie, South Carolina. In his leisure time the Colonel may often be found on the golf course and it is reported that his scores are usually in the low 80's.

Assistant instructor at Fairfax is Sergeant V. P. Pyland, who has been on duty with the unit for 10 years. In addition to supervising drill and classwork, Sergeant Pyland serves as coach of the rifle team. With these and many other duties the Sergeant's job is a busy one, but no matter how late he may stay at school on other afternoons, the Sergeant regularly takes Thursday afternoon off to "go fishing."

The cadet commanding officers of each semester deserve a great deal of credit for the success of the unit. During the winter term Elmer Lipsey served as cadet Lieutenant Colonel. Second semester his duties were ably carried out by Lieutenant Colonel Marshall Stowell. At the end of each semester the instructors appoint a cadet commander to serve during the following term, his Senior A semester.

Special activities of the unit throughout the year included entering the city-wide R.O.T.C. carnival at the Coliseum April 4, sending special competitors to the saber and manual of arms contests at the Ambassador Hotel April 22, and participating in the much-heralded Federal Inspection.

In the Coliseum April 4th, Fairfax took second place in total points, winning a second place in platoon drill, a third in individual manual of arms, and a tie for third among the military bands competing.

In the manual of arms drilldown at the Ambassador, Fairfax won highest honors. With almost 40 boys competing, 3 from each of the 13 schools represented, Fairfax took 1st, 2nd, and 4th places. The winners from Fairfax were—1st place, Sergeant Norman Gottlieb; 2nd place, Private Ralph Babcock; and 4th place, Corporal Robert MacMillan.

Although results of the Federal Inspection are yet to be announced it is to be hoped that Fairfax will again win the designation, "Honor School," which it gained last year.

Special competitions within the unit provide added stimulus for officers and men. Contests include manual of arms drilldowns, in which one man is chosen outstanding, battalion inspections,

Among R.O.T.C. organizations are the Rifle Team and the Drill Team, known more formally as the Fairfax Rifles. The Rifle Team is composed of the 15 outstanding riflemen in the unit, and a majority of the firing is done with .22 calibre rifles. The leading activities of the team include matches with other schools and special corps area matches. The Drill Team, also made up of 15 members, gives exhibitions of fancy rifle drill in Colonial assemblies and at other schools. Headed in the fall semester by Colonel Elmer Lipsey and in the spring semester by Major William Barrows, the team held frequent practises and gave exhibitions at John Burroughs Junior High School and at a special meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Building as well as at each of the military dances. The members of the team originated several new sets which have proven quite satisfactory.

As an outside activity, Captain Gibson and several of the cadet officers planned frequent trips for limited number of boys. These included a two day, fifty-mile hike in the mountains near Mount Wilson, a visit to the Marine Base and Naval Training Station at San Diego, two snow trips to Big Pine, and horseback rides.

Clubs

GERMAN CLUB

Working under the guidance of Miss Henrietta Way, head of the Language Department, the German Club of Fairfax is organized to increase the proficiency of its members in the German language. Its second purpose of guiding with friendly advice all foreign students has done much toward promoting a feeling of good will and tolerance at Fairfax. The existence of this club has been a blessing to many foreigners in that they have received help with their language difficulties and have made enduring friendships.

W'41 HI-Y

Sponsored jointly by the Y.M.C.A. and the school, and under the supervision of Coach Frank Shaffer, the Hi-Y meets once a week at the Hollywood Y.M.C.A. to discuss plans for its various activities. During the winter semester, the members carried on charity work, as well as helping with the school drives. Their main activity, athletic contests, was more extensive than ever before, and their term was topped by the regular "girl-friend night" and by the election and initiation of new members.

S'41 HI-Y

After the successful term under Bob Hutchason, Jim Fleming took over the leadership of the Hi-Y for the spring semester. The new members, who included some of the most outstanding and popular boys at Fairfax, worked with the older ones in giving the famous Hi-Y dance, which always is one of the highlights of the Fairfax social season. For many years this has remained the most popular of the boys' organizations, and the honor of membership is coveted.

ART CLUB

Those who are inspired to continue their artistic labors outside Art classes meet together to display their masterpieces in the Art Club. With the help of Mrs. Mellini, head of the Art Department, they pass criticisms on each other's work and strive to improve the technique of wielding a paint brush. They are rewarded for their efforts by the fact that the experience gained through the Art Club often makes it possible for their work to be exhibited publicly.

W'41 TRI-Y

Corresponding to the boys' Hi-Y, the Tri-Y is the girls' club which is sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. and Miss Athol Moore, representing Fairfax. The members, who are chosen for popularity, character, and leadership, strive to improve their personalities and to become better acquainted with the life and people around them. The girls seek to better themselves by studying religion, visiting the various churches, and by conducting charity work through the Y.W.C.A. The president during the W'41 term was Betty Payne.

S'41 TRI-Y

Having been in existence only a few terms, the Tri-Y is already one of the most outstanding clubs at Fairfax. Leading this group of thirty girls in the summer term was Lillian Ellis, who inspired the members to engage in more activities, which included a celebration of the Y.W.C.A. anniversary and a visit to a Tri-Y Convention at U.C.L.A. The biggest event, however, was the May Prom, given by the Tri-Y annually, the proceeds of the dance being given to charity.

SOUND CREW

The efforts of the stage crew are supplemented by the fine work of the sound crew, who make it possible for all programs in the Auditorium to be heard with ease. Mr. G. A. Carvill deserves much praise for having trained this group to be able to render this service which overcomes the poor acoustics in the Fairfax Auditorium.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The Cosmopolitan Club, sponsored by Miss Emma Wood, develops in our students an appreciation of the youth of other countries with the help of foreign speakers, travel films, and open discussions. The members choose a representative to attend the meetings of the city-wide friendship group, and to keep them informed on their activities. As the primary aim is advancing international peace and understanding, the program of the club is to study world relations.

TRIPLE F

A group of the finest girls at school—of such can the Triple F boast. This is the girls' friendship club of Fairfax, which welcomes with warm friendliness new Colonial ladies. The members, who conduct meetings well-known for fine entertainment and instructive discussions, work in close contact with the Alphas, and are fortunate in having the benefit of Mrs. G C. Sharpe's advice and aid.

BIBLE CLUB

In order to study the Bible and to learn more about Biblical times, the Bible Club meets weekly during the noon hour. The motto of these boys and girls is from Timothy II, the second chapter, fifteenth verse —"Study to show thyself approved unto God." They meet in two separate groups, and, for the last part of the summer term, had instructors from outside of school, since Mrs. E. Keyes, who formerly sponsored them, left school temporarily.

PRESS CLUB

Mrs. Jessie Stromberger, journalism instructor, who supervises the publication of the Gazette, organized a social club for the benefit of the Gazette staff and other journalism students. They responded favorably to her initial effort, and now the Press Club thrives as a large and popular organization. Members go on novel "excursions" together and visit places of interest, all of which furthers their knowledge of journalism, printing, and newspaper life.

LETTERGIRLS' CLUB

When a G.A.A. member receives her letter, she automatically becomes eligible to join the Lettergirls' Club, which is conducted on a social basis. Its activities revolve around beach parties, hikes, luncheons, wiener bakes, theatre parties, bowling parties, horseback rides, teas, card parties, and picnics. At the end of each term, the girls give a farewell luncheon for the graduating seniors, after which they all take in a movie.

Colquhoun. Front Row: M. Kurtz, E. Smyth, A. Bretsfelder, A. Horgan, N. Davydiuk, M. Marohn, C. Campbell, B. Dodge, L. Nahas.

TREASURER'S OFFICE WORKERS

Under the supervision of Mr. J. N. Conway, the school treasurer, a number of students are assembled to handle the school funds. These pupils include the Chancellor of the Exchecquer, the girls who manage the sales at the candy stands, the ice cream and sandwich stands, and the student store.

ATHLETIC SERVICE CLUB

Members of the Athletic Service Club are the officers who enforce the rules made by the Boys' and Girls' Assize Courts, by keeping the students of Fairfax within bounds and by seeing that the halls are clear and quiet during noon. This group also includes the M.P.'s or Military Police who manage the crowds at athletic contests.

LITERARY LIONS

Fairfax playwrights, poets, and scribblers-in-general are given an opportunity to write among literary-minded fellow-students and to enjoy sincere praise and constructive criticism of their work at the meetings of the Literary Lions. Its members have many activities, the most important of which is the publishing each term of the "Lion's Roar."

HALL GUARDS

The Fairfax Assize Courts head the government and the enforcing of rules, but without the aid of certain groups the Courts could never manage. One of those groups is the Hall Guards, who patrol the halls during the noon hour and in the mornings to see that no students disturb classes in session.

ANNUAL SALESMANSHIP CLASS

Mr. F. E. Wesson's class in salesmanship took over the selling of the 1941 Colonial this year. This revolved around the principle of giving the class an actual project to be worked out. So it was beneficial to the members of the class, but it was also beneficial to the Annual.

OFFICE HELPERS

Teachers are busy people, and their main function, in spite of everything, is to teach, but it is amazing how little teaching they would do if it weren't for the office helpers. They handle all the small details which an instructor so often is troubled with. For example, they can type registration cards, sort test papers, record marks or list names.

OFFICE HELPERS

The term Office Helpers applies to anyone who acts as a page in one of the vice-principals' offices, in a departmental office, in the main office, the attendance office, or in one of the Gym offices. Students sign up for these positions; many will choose to work in the same office, term after term, and often profit by doing so.

MEDICAL CLUB

Having been active for only two years, the Medical Club was formed for the benefit of all those who plan to study medicine and those who are interested in the study of one of its various fields. Mr. Enochs, the sponsor, has made it possible for the members to hear lectures by prominent physicians and to visit places of medical interest.

LIBRARY HELPERS

The school librarians have worked out a system by which all student library-workers may have an equal chance at learning and applying their knowledge. Every four weeks, the students alternate at such jobs as mending books, typing book cards, caring for the catalogue, arranging books, checking books in and out, checking incoming books and orders, and handling book summonses. Many pupils receive service points for their work in the library, but some receive academic credit; these must take tests regularly and memorize the text of certain books.

BOWLING CLUB

One of Fairfax's newest organizations is the Bowling Club, which is popular with the students, and has a large membership. Sponsored by Mr. H. L. Goddard, the group meets weekly and bowls at a large new bowling alley in Hollywood. This term for the first time they had entries in the league tournaments.

CAFETERIA HOSTESSES

During the past few terms the Cafeteria has been handled by several student managers and a group of hostesses, who alternate every two weeks. In addition to adding pleasant atmosphere to luncheon, these girls have made the cafeteria a smooth-running, organized arrangement.

COLONIAL CONSERVADORS

All cafeteria workers automatically become members of the Conservadors when they accept their jobs in the cafeteria. Mrs. Thelma Alexander, cafeteria manager, originated the group to improve conditions in our school dining room. The main activity of the Conservadors during the S'41 semester was to prepare for the Cafeteria Institute Meeting held at Fairfax.

STAGE CREW

Under the direction of Mr. G. G. Lee the stage crew works behind the scenes of every Fairfax production, handling lights, scenery, curtains and properties and coping with all the complications that arise during the staging of any theatrical. The members' efficiency is responsible for the smooth running programs presented on the Fairfax stage.

CALIFORNIA CLUB

One of the most educational organizations at Fairfax is the California Club, which is sponsored by Mr. W. Koenig, for the purpose of creating student interest in outdoor life. Not alone through books and lectures do the members learn to appreciate nature; they also engage in long hikes and camping trips as activities.

BREAKFAST CLUB

The boys in Miss Araxi Jamgochian's first period Public Speaking class are the members of the Breakfast Club, which has been in existence only a few terms. Miss Jamgochian, the instructor of Drama and Speech, sponsors three breakfasts each semester, at which guest speakers discuss topics assigned to the boys as class study.

Celeen -

How can I tell you all the things I feel - there just aren't the right kind of words. Always there will be a place in my heart for you. You are the only person I've ever known who combined physical preciousness and mental stability and sense so charmingly. Some of the pleasantest moments of my life have been spent in your company. I am so happy for you in your coming marriage and when you walk down the aisle I know I'll be one of the "cries for joy." The most natural thing in the world for a girl is marriage and I have such complete faith in your capabilities that I believe you'll make a big success out of it. They say a friend in need is a friend indeed. I think I'm one of that kind. So if you ever need help, a shoulder to cry on, or just someone to talk to - please call on me. My sincerest love,

THE FAIRFAX YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Custodian – Snake Charmer

Twenty-two feet of deadly snake — that's the hobby of James M. Dannaldson, former custodian of Fairfax, and it's no joke, for Pete (that's the name of the 22-foot python constrictor) is the second largest serpent in the United States and the only one tame enough to be useful. Pete, who is 10 years old, proves his usefulness, however, by being a real movie star at $300 a day, which is his salary for performing before the cameras.

Mr. Dannaldson doesn't just play around at being a snake collector—he is a bona fide naturalist, having received educational background at the University of Southern California and Seton Institute. A keen interest in all animals is evident by his enthusiasm concerning his collection of varied types of wild life; Pete, a native of the Malayan Jungles, is his favorite of many unusual and fascinating creatures of the jungle. Mr. Dannaldson's work as chairman of the Western Herpetological Association and as author of "Serpent Trails" qualifies him to handle this immense python, which requires seven people to force-feed him once every five weeks. That sounds unpleasant, and it is, since his meal consists of from 20 to 30 pounds of rabbit stuffed with cod-liver oil, raw beef, and bone meal.

Pete has little chance of being challenged by competitors, for war conditions make the capturing of another reptile this size impossible; therefore his value is placed at $1,000, and, being used in motion picture and lecture work, he pulls in more than $4,000 each year. That means something to his owner, proving Pete to be quite a profitable investment, since the cost of the serpent's upkeep is seldom over $10 a month. Our snake-charmer has a rosy future ahead of him, too, as far as this income is concerned, for Pete is considered a comparatively young reptile.

"Oh, he's no trouble at all," says Mr. Dannaldson smiling. "He sleeps most of the time and is more congenial and cooperative than some human beings." So that's his story, but please note the pictures—Pete is putting up a fight and, personally, I'd hate to be on the receiving end of one of his bad moods. Oh, well, everyone to his own opinion.

Some time ago, Mr. Dannaldson was lecturing in various parts of the country, giving an educational program illustrated with what was called the world's foremost collection of tame jungle-bred animals; his subject was "Wild Animals I Have Trained."

Best of Luck Always

Head Man

Merrill Munmart

Running a 2,500 acre ranch, telling a fish story, being in clover (literally), or just being the father of two beautiful daughters—any one would be hobby enough for an ordinary man, but it requires all of these to keep Mr. Ralph W. Detter busy during the hours that he is not actively engaged in the administration of Fairfax High School.

Mr. Detter's ranch is located in the Province of Alberta in Canada and is used for raising, among other crops, wheat and clover. Here Mr. Detter travels every summer to supervise the work being done and to cope with the problems presented by a farm next door to a Black-foot Indian Reservation.

The fish is just a gag and was a 62-ton, 62-foot whale at a whaling station located near Eureka, California.

The daughters, Isla and Betty, both graduates of Hollywood High School and Pomona College, are Mr. Detter's pride and joy. And rightly, too, for not only are they delightful to look at, but also delightful to know, as is obvious from the fact that both were such a success at school. Isla was the Queen of the May Mask held at Pomona's Greek Theatre; Betty, the younger, acted as May Queen also when she was a Pomona Senior and filled the shoes of the student body Vice-President. The next time you go into Mr. Detter's office notice the two small portraits sitting on the corner of his desk—after all, they are his main hobby.

Pottery Putterer

As a diversion from her confining work of teaching, our very talented Mrs. F. T. Whiting, after having dabbled in china-painting became interested in pottery-making through the night school class in Ceramics at Hollywood High School.

In designing and creating her artistic articles, Mrs. Whiting uses a small crochet-needle-like instrument and the deftness of her nimble fingers in the molding holds a fascination for the on-looker, as a mass becomes an object of beautiful symmetry.

She insists she lacks creative ability but those clever figures in her cabinet speak for themselves, as, for instance, her favorite creation—a little fat, bald-headed man whose very expression of sternness bubbles over with hidden glee and makes you forget a little that he really hasn't a heart; or that the donkey and cart which she entered in the hobby show last year, also one of her pets, isn't really on the way to market in Old Mexico.

Mrs. Whiting, hoping to accomplish bigger things in pottery, is already making molds or plaster casts of her figures and vases and is to fashion a tile top table for her patio. The pattern for it and also the iron scroll part of the table is her own design. Such ingenuity well deserves praise.

In the pictures, we see her at work in the classroom of the shop building at Hollywood High. The cane which you see hanging on the door in the lower photograph is hers; she was the victim recently of a sprained ankle. Above she is shown with some of her co-workers in the Physical Education Department at Fairfax.

Sailor

Steve Crosby's hobby has an interesting history. Following in the footsteps of Steve's grandfather, who sailed a catboat on Long Island Sound, Stephen Crosby, Sr., was in the United States Navy for a number of years. Thus, you have Steve's hobby and favorite pastime—sailing.

His experience has been quite extensive, for he made a "solo-sail" in a six-foot boat when he was only five years old. Since that time, he has worked his way from a nine-foot skiff to a 44-foot yacht, having turned over only four times, and having been a crew member in racing boats. His own boat is an 18-foot marconi-rigged sloop, which, says Steve, has a passage capacity of 14 people, but which makes for better sailing with only two passengers. The pictures show Steve in a 23-foot gaff-rigged sloop, his uncle's boat.

Stone Cutter

Woodcraft Ranger work is responsible for Al Homer's interest in polishing valuable stones. Three years ago, when Al was a Woodcraft Ranger, his instructor taught him the process of cutting and polishing stones such as the agate and the turquoise, and Al has conscientiously made a collection of those he has polished, at times having them put in settings for gifts and ornaments.

In the photographs, Al, who also has an ability for arranging and growing flowers, is in his former instructor's work shop, at the diamond saw and at the buffing wheel. Polishing stones is an art which isn't too difficult to master, so Al says, but it involves much intricate equipment for shaping the pieces into clever patterns; to polish and shape an agate, for example, requires approximately five hours.

Confucius Collector

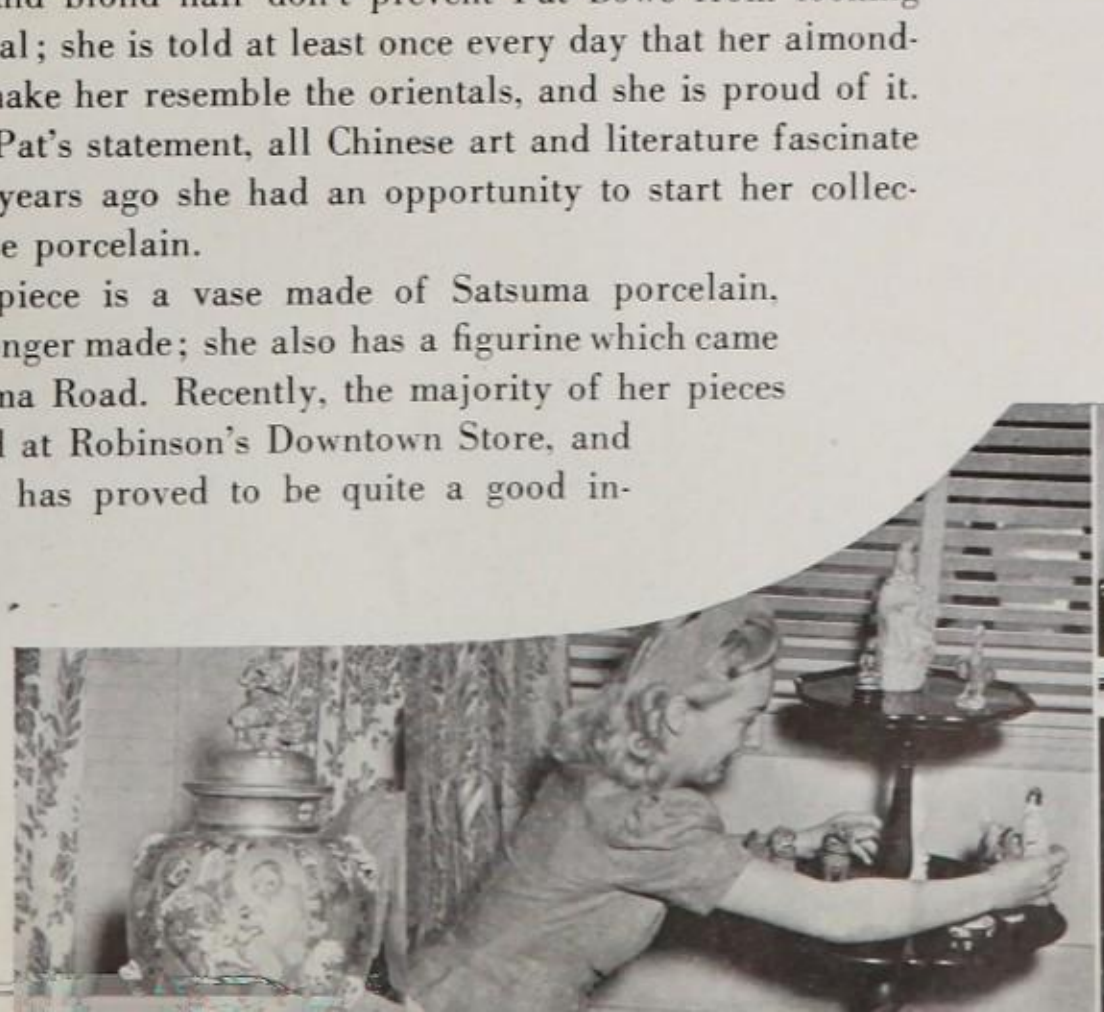
Interest in Chinese religion is the reason behind Beverly McFarland's collection of Chinese art. She has a small private library on China and its people, and she has compiled several notebooks of originally written material on Chinese religion, customs, manners, superstitions, and music.

Aside from her study of the subject, Beverly has collected a beautiful hand-carved chest, whose carvings relate a story, and, among many other things, two porcelain figures of the "Eight Immortals" of the Taoist Religion. Several of her prize China silk scarfs were brought across the seas in 1908 by an old cook in a Chinese family.

Accidental Oriental

Blue eyes and blond hair don't prevent Pat Bowe from looking slightly oriental; she is told at least once every day that her aimond-shaped eyes make her resemble the orientals, and she is proud of it. According to Pat's statement, all Chinese art and literature fascinate her, and five years ago she had an opportunity to start her collection of Chinese porcelain.

Her prize piece is a vase made of Satsuma porcelain, which is no longer made; she also has a figurine which came over the Burma Road. Recently, the majority of her pieces were exhibited at Robinson's Downtown Store, and her collection has proved to be quite a good investment.



Equestrienne – Artist

Betty Goodan says she could hardly escape art since her father is a western artist, now drawing the Gene Autry comic strip which appears in several of the larger newspapers in the country, and, on the other side of the family, her mother was once a millinery designer. Just recently Betty won the Eastern Sunrise Poster Contest, regaining a trophy which Fairfax has held for five years. Too, she has ability for comic strip work, for she now helps her father by drawing all the girls who appear in the story each day.

Having received her art education entirely from elementary art work taken at school, this young artist paints only things which she understands and actually contacts. This fact leads us to a second more or less hidden hobby of Betty's . . . that of horse-back riding. Again Mr. Goodan's influence is obvious, for he does leather stamping on saddles and is a horseman of wide experience. Owning two horses, Betty has learned to train them and has been entered several times in the Saugus Rodeo where she placed second in the Queen's Contest this year.

Ologist

For this hobby, we went beyond the walls of Fairfax to Johnny Baumgardt, an alumnus of Fairfax since January 30th, whose hobby is threefold, consisting of ornithology, herpetology, and the study of fossils.

Over a period of ten years, Johnny has collected birds' eggs and nests, reptiles belonging to the locale of Southern California, and ancient rocks. Along with this collecting, he has gathered considerable reading matter from which he has learned the technique of capturing animals of all kinds, and the art of preserving them satisfactorily.

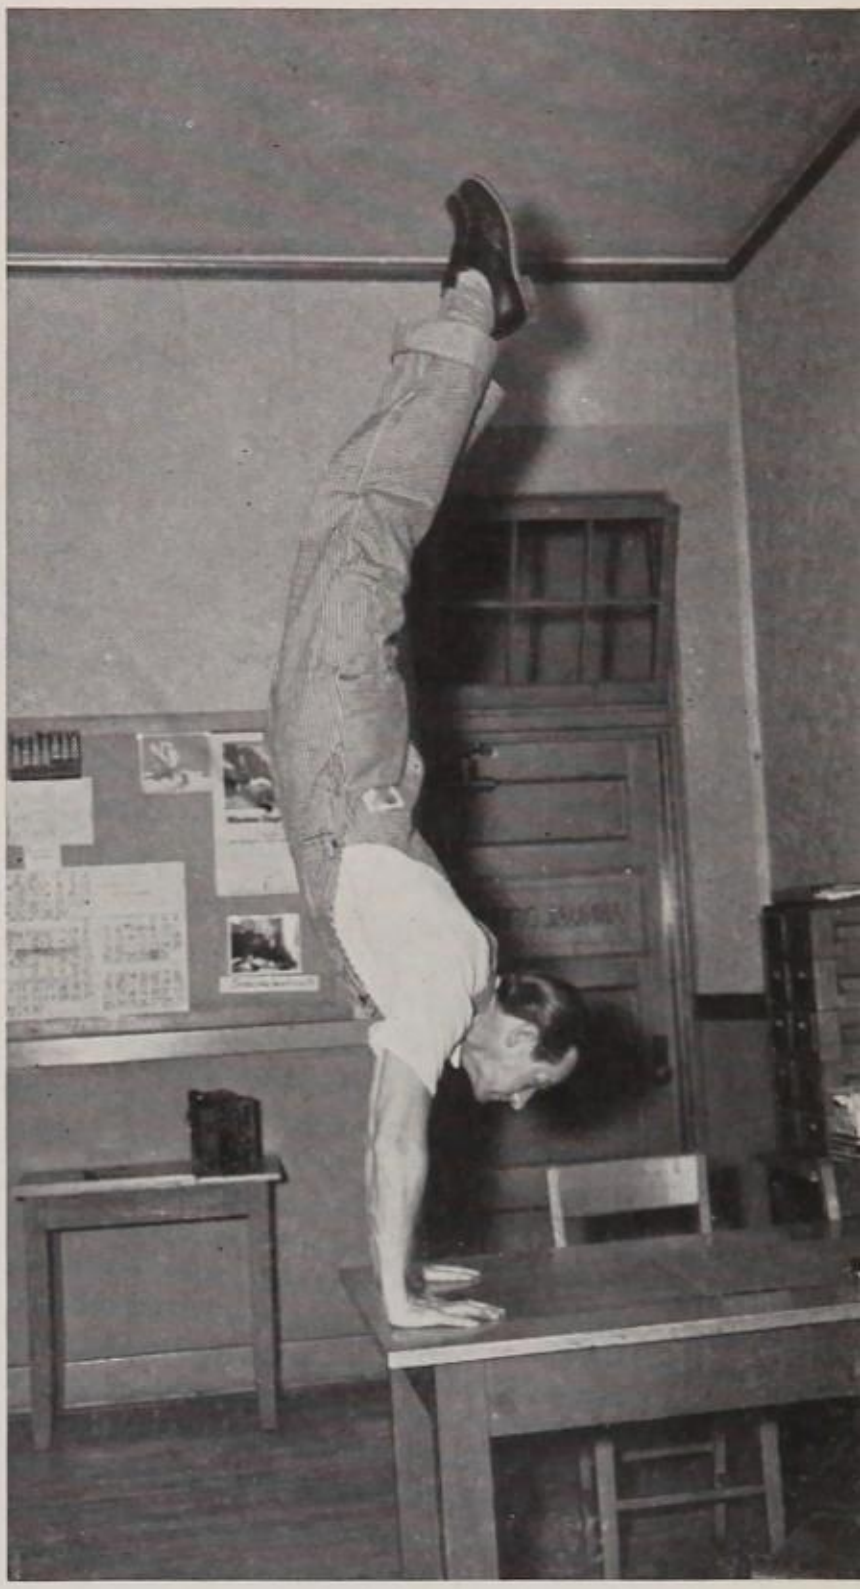
John's collecting is an avocation entirely, for he now attends Cumnock, where he is preparing for the college of dentistry.

Helmeteerer

From two until ten each night James Stuart Byrne works as a custodian, unnoticed within the walls of Fairfax—unnoticed, that is, beyond the fact that several curious Colonials have seen fit to inquire about the odd-looking mask which he wears to keep the injurious dust from his throat. No one has guessed that this man is now taking courses at U.C.L.A., that already he has acquired Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees.

His abilities do not stop here, however, for Mr. Byrne's hobby is a fascinating and unusual one, to which he has given the name "helmeteering"—in simple English, deep-sea diving. A laboratory technician, who became his close friend, taught him the principles of diving, and together they went out in a 10-foot flat-bottomed scow to experiment with hand air pumps. From this small beginning has developed an organization of eight men who are crew members of a privately owned diving boat. Among this eight there are a bacteriologist, a doctor of medicine, a naturalist, a navigator, and a writer-interpreter; Mr. Byrne fills the latter position, and these ambitious men have dreams of a treasure ship in which they will travel to the South Seas to make a study of microscopic biology. They get out together as often as possible to learn more about their hobby, and use helmets which fit over the head, Mr. Byrne having made several himself.

He knows his business, too. Having done light salvaging and photography work along with his diving, he is well equipped to write a book on the subject. And he intends to do just that—a book patterned after Gil Patrick's "The Compleat Goggler;" It is to be a comical series of articles on amateur diving.



The only serious object of the book will be a list of simple safety rules for the growing number of amateur divers to prevent drowning caused by ignorance on their part. Many and varied dangers of deep-sea diving are not known well enough among the younger amateur enthusiasts to insure their safety while they are engaged in diving; for example, even the most advanced divers should not go beyond the forty foot diving mark, since beyond that there is danger of Caisson Disease (divers' bends). Mr. Byrne hopes that this publication will make deep-sea diving a celebrated and a safe sport, but his modesty causes him to say that it will probably never be seen in print. If a charming personality and an alert mind play any part in success, however, Mr. Byrne may feel assured that his book will be published and that his teachings will become widely known.

A Football

Starting the season with the loss of two all-city men, Frank Glave and Eddie Harrison, Coach Frank Shaffer endeavored to build a team around his other returning lettermen.

Faring quite well in league competition, winning three games and losing two, the Colonial varsity eleven managed to take third place in the league with a .750 average.

A unique feature of the Colonial football season was their ability to score in the first quarter. The Lions managed to score in the initial period in every fray except the Venice encounter. Throughout the season the team piled up 73 points for their opposition.

Traveling to Bell for their first practice encounter of the year, the Lions were defeated 12 to 6 by the Eagles.

Behind from the opening kickoff when a Bell player took the ball and rambled 75 yards to paydirt, the Lions tried vainly to win the game.

Fighting back in the second quarter the Colonials netted one touchdown when Walker Sohn plunged over from the nine yard line to tie the count.

It remained until late in the fourth quarter before Bell could nudge over another touchdown.

After being set back in their first game the Lions showed a reversal of form in their second encounter by whipping a favored Manual Arts team, 13 to 6.

The Colonials lost no time in putting six markers in the scoring column. The Lions opened the game by going 61 yards in four plays only to fumble on the four yard line. After Manual had kicked out, the Colonials again found themselves in possession of the ball on the Toilers' 25 yard line. An end reverse from Walker Sohn to Johnny Beauchamp, who then heaved a pass to the waiting arms of Jack Ogg, produced the Lions' first score.

During the second quarter the Toilers scored their only touchdown of the fray when Paul Henry, the Manual track star, grabbed one of John Kennedy's quick kicks on his own 30 yard line and raced through the entire Colonial aggregation to score.

Waiting until the waning minutes of the fourth quarter to score, the Colonials again hit paydirt. With Kennedy and Sohn alternating carrying the ball, Sohn climaxed the 52 yard drive by scoring from the one yard line.

The score of the game by no means shows the Lions' superior power as they piled up 426 yards from scrimmage to 64 for the Toilers. An unusual feature of the game was the result of the first downs. The Colonials marked down 20 while the Toilers didn't earn one.

Finding themselves favored over their first league encounter, University, due to the Lions' win over the Manual Arts Toilers, and Manual's tie with the University Warriors, the Colonials let down and found themselves on the short end of a 19 to 13 score after the final whistle had blown.

Again the Lions started things off right by scoring in the first quarter. John Kennedy ran the opening kickoff back for 61 yards. Seven plays later Walker "chubby" Sohn crashed over from the five yard line. Kennedy converted to make the score 7 to 0 in favor of the Lions.

Coming back in the second quarter the Warriors scored once in the second stanza and twice in the third period, on jaunts of 35 and 50 yards by Jack Elser and Doug Miller.

Although the Lions were thoroughly outclassed they fought back in the final quarter and gained back one of the touchdowns when Kennedy plunged over from the 15 yard line.

After being set back by University the Colonials traveled to the stronghold of the Venice Gondoliers only to be met with defeat, this time by the score of 27 to 6.

The Lions played a good game but lucky breaks and good playing on the part of the Venice players spelled defeat.

Holding their own in yardage as they outgained the Oarsmen 304 to 280 yards from scrimmage and made eleven first downs to nine for the Gondoliers, the Lions' only touchdown came in the final stanza when John Kennedy went over from the eight yard line.

Returning to their home field the Lions next met the roving Dons from Dorsey and tasted victory for the first time in league competition, when they shellacked the Dorsey men, 20 to 7.

As seemed to be their custom in most of their games, the Colonials scored in the initial minute of the fray when Walker Sohn raced through the center of the line into the open field and scampered 40 yards to paydirt. Just to add to the score, John Kennedy stepped back and placed the ball straight through the uprights for the extra point.

The Dons' only score came in the second quarter when Jack "Rabbit" Kirby went over from the one yard line. Ernie Gustafson converted to tie the score.

With Captain "Spud" Potapov and Jack Ogg playing a brilliant defensive game the Lions continued to run up the highest score of their season. This time it was again Sohn who lugged the ball over from the 15 yard line.

With Quarterback Sohn and Fullback Kennedy again carrying the ball most of the time, the Lions set up the stage for their third touchdown in the final quarter. Wayne Clifford, small and mighty, was inserted into the game for Kennedy and followed Walker Sohn's excellent blocking over for the third score.

Repeating their previous week's performance the Colonials downed the Hamilton Yankees on Van Cleve field 12 to 0 for their second League victory.

"Score in the first quarter," seemed to be the Lions' motto for the season as they opened the Hamilton game with a touchdown after only four plays had taken place.

In the initial play of the game Walker Sohn went through the center of the line for 32 yards.

"Whoa"

A pass from Sohn to Ogg netted 12 more yards; then Kennedy raced off tackle for 17 additional yards, which set up the stage for Johnny Beauchamp to take a reverse from Sohn; with blocking by Jack Ogg, Beauchamp went the remaining 33 yards to score.

The Lions scored again on a 22 yard pass from Sohn to Levy.

An added feature of the fray was Kennedy's superb kicking. Kennedy had a net average of 44 yards per boot in nine attempts, once getting off a beautiful 64 yard kick which rolled out of bounds on the Yankee two yard marker. The Lions were down two in initial markers, the Feds getting 11 and the Lions being able to muster only two.

Playing an inspired brand of football the Colonials topped off a fair season by upsetting a highly favored Roman team from Los Angeles High, 12 to 7, on the turf of Gilmore stadium.

The Lions again scored in the first period on a six yard smash by Walker Sohn after the ball had been placed in scoring position on a 34 yard end around by Johnny Beauchamp and three successive line plunges by John Kennedy.

With the exception of the Lions' surprise offense in the second quarter, the game during this period produced no score.

Late in the third stanza the Lions netted another touchdown. Gaining possession of the ball on the midfield stripe the Colonials went into action. Beauchamp took a reverse from Sohn, faded to the side lines, and heaved a pass to the waiting arms of Right Half Joe Miller on the one yard line. On the next play, John Kennedy powerhoused his way through center for the Lions' second score.

"End of the Line."

The Romans then gave the Colonials a scare by scoring a touchdown in the final stanza and looked as if they were on their way to another, when Joe Miller intercepted a pass to end the scoring threat.

Credit for winning the game can be given to every member of the team plus every member of the student body, who never ceased cheering and encouraging the players. Coaches Shaffer and Lloyd should be given high praise for their efforts put forth after school in getting the Lions into shape for the contest. Coach Shaffer's fine defensive system that so successfully stopped the Romans' chief threat, Al Hoisch, should also be commended.

The Lions' forward wall composed of ends, Beauchamp and Ogg, tackles Rouse and Ritchie, guards, Capt. Spud Potapov and Gains Mors, plus Jim Peterson who plugged in the gap left by the injured Mors in the early stage of the game, and the two centers Wise and Starr played one of the best games for Fairfax that it will ever be the privilege of a loyal Colonial to see.

The blocking of Jerry Decter and Mike Levy, both playing with injuries, was the kind of blocking to be proud of. Joe Miller's brilliant defensive work in the back field was more than could be expected from any one man.

All this plus Walker Sohn's and John Kennedy's excellent offensive and defensive work topped off a mediocre season in a blaze of glory for the Lions.

The statistics also favored the Colonials, proving the victory was no fluke. The Lions piled up 251 yards from scrimmage to 211 for the Romans with the first downs coming out even at six apiece.

After the season had been completed, the tutoring of Coach Shaffer and the ability to follow instructions of four boys, John Kennedy, Walker Sohn, Spud Potapov, and Johnny Beauchamp, caused the Colonials to be honored with four berths on the first and second string All-Western League teams. Sohn and Potapov made first string, with Beauchamp and Kennedy gaining second string positions.

Sohn and Potapov gained still further laurels by being chosen on the All-City squads. Sohn was honored with a position on the third string in the backfield with Captain "Spud" Potapov filling in a guard position on the second team.

Sixteen boys received letters in return for their fine playing on the gridiron. They were: Jerry Decter, Mike Levy, John Kennedy, Walker Sohn, Joe Miller, Wayne Clifford, Captain "Spud" Potapov, Johnny Beauchamp, Jack Ogg, Bill Matthess, Ed Starr, Al Wise, Harold Rouse, Ernest Ritchie, Gains Mors, and Don Hardy.

B Football

Facing the task of molding a contender for the Western League Bee crown with only two remaining lettermen as a foundation, Coach Hugh Welsh's Bee gridders placed next to the last in league competition, with one win as compared with four defeats and a tie.

The Lions started their season with scrimmages against North Hollywood's and Marshall's Bee teams. After seeing the inexperienced boys perform, Coach Welsh named a starting team of Reiss and Hydemen at ends, Mors and Otto as tackles, Alder and Hewitt as guards, and Muirfield at center. The four backfield men consisted of Feigenbaum at quarter, Ettein and Wiggins at halves, and Matlock playing fullback.

The above lineup didn't start the Lions' first practice game with Belmont due to the fact that many of the boys were ill with the flu. However, the Lions fielded a fair team and were defeated 26 to 13. Bud Reiss took a pass from Frank Wiggins to score the Lions' first touchdown; Jimmy Dunn tallied the other score on an intercepted pass.

After being set back the previous week the Lions next met the University Warriors and defeated the wandering tribe on Van Cleve Field 22 to 6.

Sparking the game for the Lions in the backfield was Alvin Feigenbaum and Cliff Ettein. Feigenbaum's hard drives and Ettein's long passes kept the game moving at all times.

The Lions' three scores were made by three different players. Feigenbaum crashed over from the four yard stripe for the initial tally early in the first quarter. During the second period, Bud Reiss caught a pass from Cliff Ettein for the second score. The third touchdown was the result of a reverse from Feigenbaum to Hydemen who scored from the six yard line.

The entire Lion team shone brilliantly throughout the fray with Mors, Muirfield and Reiss outstanding.

After winning their first encounter, the Lions weren't quite so successful in their next game, being set back by the Los Angeles Romans 24 to 0. A Los Angeles Bee grabbed the opening kickoff and rambled 65 yards to score. This seemed to take all the spirit out of the Lions and all their energy seemed wasted, even though they did not stop fighting.

The next three frays produced no better results as the Lions were set back twice and gained a tie in their third attempt.

Venice started things off by downing the Colonials 20 to 6 on the home field. The Lions' only score came when Willie Mors took a pass from Fred Wiggins to score in the third quarter.

In their next encounter the Lions were again defeated, this time by Dorsey, 19 to 6, on the Dons' field.

Playing their last game, the Colonials vowed to win, but were held to a 12 to 12 tie by a fighting band of Bees from Hamilton.

After the Federalists had scored first, the Lions were set back in spirit when the spark of the team throughout the season, Al Feigenbaum, was taken out of the game with a dislocated shoulder in the second period. Scoring touchdowns for the Lions were Jimmy Dunn and Cliff Ettein with Muirfield, Matlock, Alder and Hewitt playing a bang up defensive game.

Ending the season with one win and four defeats with a tie isn't a record to be too proud of. However, the Lions had an inexperienced team and not once through the entire season did the team quit fighting.

At the conclusion of the season the gridsters elected Willie Mors as their captain and 14 boys were awarded letters.

Letter winners were: Ed Otto, Charles Muirfield, Tom Yeder, Dale Hewitt, Bud Reiss, Jack Heydemen, Dick Alder, Jim Tattersol, Bill Mors, Alvin Feigenbaum, Jimmy Dunn, Cliff Ettein, Fred Wiggins, and Ed Matlock.

To see only one varsity letterman, Milt Stackhouse, returning didn't cheer Coach Bowen's spirits in the least on the first day of practice. However, the fact that eight out of the other fifty boys were lettermen from the previous year's championship Bee team did.

After many inter-team scrimmages, Coach Bowen finally cut the squad to nine boys and proceeded to mold a starting line-up composed of Joe Call and George Tait at forwards, and Milt Stackhouse at center, with Willie Levin and Morrie Goldstein at the guard spots.

The Lions rang up a 1715 average in practice games, winning five with only two setbacks. In league competition their record wasn't as impressive, as they lost five and won five games. This record gave the Lions a tie for third place with Los Angeles High. This is the lowest the Lions have finished in 15 years.

Favored to win their opening contest the Lions let the dopesters down and were set back by the Los Angeles Romans, 31 to 28, on the Lions' own court. The Romans were behind till the closing minutes of the fray when they collared the Colonials and went on to win. Diminutive Joe Call led the Lions' scoring parade with 10 points.

Traveling to Venice for their second encounter, the Lions were comforted for their previous week's defeat, by downing the Oarsmen, 39 to 21. Again Call led the team in scoring with 10 points; George Tait rang up eight. A beautiful defensive game played by Willie Levin also featured the fray.

Returning to their own lair the Lions rang up another league victory when they bombarded the hoop for a 37 to 15 win over the Dorsey Dons.

Playing the best game of their season the Colonials next disposed of the previously unbeaten Hamilton Yankees on the Lions' court, 40 to 37, for their third league victory. Led by Milt Stackhouse and Willie Levin with 10 and 9 points respectively, the Lions guarded and performed on offense with equal skill.

With Morrie Goldstein leading the way, the Colonials next bested the University High quintette by a 37 to 27 margin. Goldstein hit the hoop for seven points before he was forced to leave the contest with four personal fouls.

Riding on the crest of four straight wins proved too much for the Lions as their next game produced a 32 to 29 win for Los Angeles High. The whole team seemed to be off where shooting was concerned, with their shots going in and out again.

George Tait sank 14 points in leading the Lions to their fifth league victory, when they downed Venice, 36 to 33, on the Colonial hardwoods. Tait's shots seemed to be drawn to the basket as he made many incredible shots.

"It just wasn't their day." That can easily be said as the Dorsey Dons avenged their first round defeat by the Lions, as they downed the Colonials, 44 to 42. The Dons' lanky center, Rocky Thompson, went on a scoring spree to sink 19 points. However, the Lions fought back in the final minutes of the game, with George Tait again hitting the hoop for 14 points, but couldn't make the necessary points.

The next two league contests also proved disheartening to the Lions when they dropped their first contest to the Hamilton Yankees, 33 to 25, and their second fray to the University Warriors, 40 to 36.

For the first time in seven years the Colonials downed Hollywood High, 37 to 22, to end their mediocre season in a blaze of glory. The Sheiks, champions of the Northern League, proved no match for the rejuvenated Lions. All of the Lions displayed their best brand of ball, those not scoring making up for it on defense. George Tait led the scoring for the Colonials with 13 points, followed by Willie Levin with 10. Levin also performed brilliantly on defense, holding the Sheiks' scoring ace, Bob Norby, to two points, both foul shots.

After the season was over the Lions were honored with the selection of Willie Levin as first string guard on the All-Western League team with Joe Call and George Tait gaining honorable mention. Tait wound up second in the league scoring race with 94 points in 12 games to his credit.

Seven boys were awarded letters at the conclusion of the season. They were: Joe Call, George Tait, Morrie Goldstein, Milt Stackhouse, Willie Levin, Wesley Hawley and Joel Rudof.

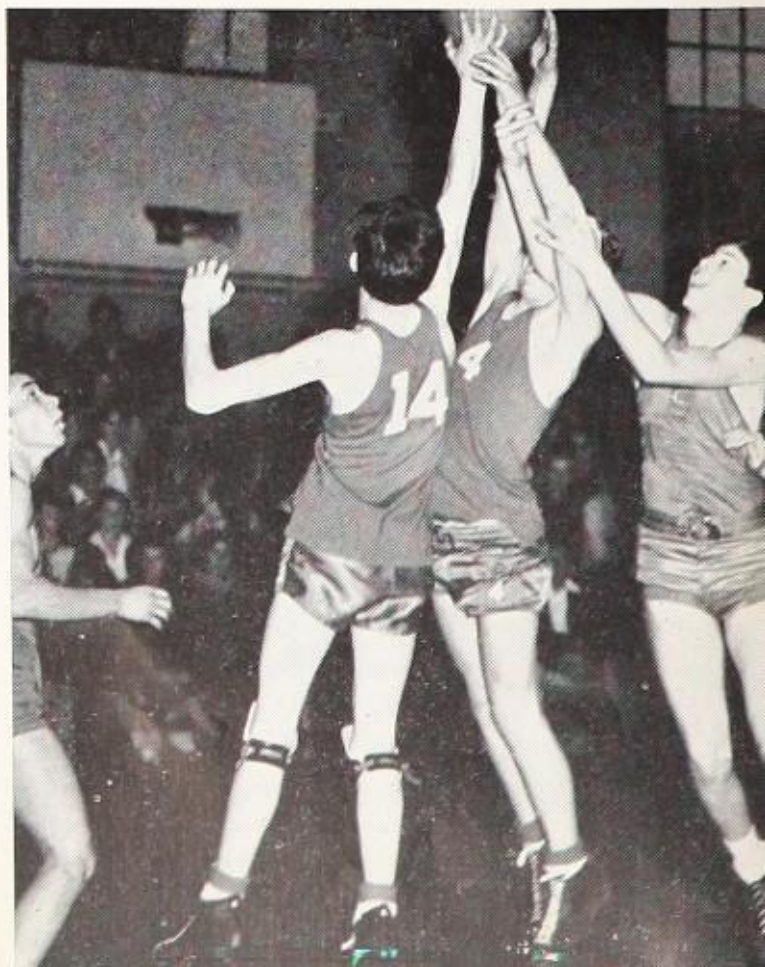
As was the case on the varsity, Coach Bowen greeted only one returning letterman and was forced to make a Bee team of four inexperienced men and one letterman.

After playing six practice games Coach Bowen came up with a starting lineup composed of Martin Bondar and Myron Solo at guards, Linny Seigel at center, and Seymour Coates and Fred Berry at the forwards.

The Lion Cubs' first two league games proved disastrous as the Los Angeles Romans first took their measure, 32 to 26, and the Bees from Venice next nipped the Colonials, 22 to 20.

However, this combination started clicking in their next encounter and the Bees downed the Dorsey lightweights, 29 to 22. Jack Effinger led the Lions in scoring with seven points, with Martin Bondar's defensive work an added feature of the fray.

Bondar fights for the ball in the Hollywood game.



The next game, however, was no picnic, and they were again defeated 34 to 31 by the Hamilton Yankees.

Led by Linny Seigel at the pivot spot, with nine points, the Lion Cubs next took the measure of the University Warriors' Lightweights, 41 to 22. All members of the Lions' 13 man squad shared in this victory, each man seeing action.

Traveling to Los Angeles proved no handicap as the Bees beat the Roman team, 35 to 33, to avenge their earlier season defeat. This time it was Seymour Coates who led the scoring column with 10 points; Martin Bondar was next in line with nine digits.

With two straight victories to their credit the Lions continued their streak by chalking up their highest score of the season in defeating the Venice lightweights, 47 to 26. Fred Berry led the Lions' scoring with 12 points.

The Lions' Bees made it six straight wins in winning their next three league games from the Dorsey Dons, 35 to 21, the Hamilton Yankees, 27 to 19, and the University Warriors, 24 to 21.

Their final game of the year, a post season affair with the Hollywood High Shieks, resulted in a 37 to 36 victory for the Lions. The game wasn't decided until the final seconds of the game when a Lion sub, Morrie Ware, hooked in a shot for the margin of victory. Throughout the first stages of the fray, Myron Solo's spectacular shots kept the Lions in the game. Solo ended the day with 14 points to snare high point honors. He was followed by Fred Berry with 10 markers.

Seven boys received letters for their services. They were: Myron Solo, Martin Bondar, Leonard Seigel, Fred Berry, Seymour Coats, Morrie Ware, and Seymour Bricker.

The Lions finished the season in a tie for second place with seven wins against three defeats only a half game behind the champions from Los Angeles High.

A Baseball

Greeting five returning lettermen, composed of the previous year's starting infield and starting pitcher, Coach Frank Shaffer set about the task of building a varsity baseball nine.

The prospects of several Bee lettermen, plus some boys who played varsity ball the previous year but failed to make a letter, lightened Coach Shaffer's spirits.

At the start of the practice season the Lions fielded a varsity horsehide squad composed of Don Hardy at first base, Wally Hood at second, Fred Berry at short, Jim Hardy covering the hot corner, Al Yaylian pitching, and Harry Rouse taking over the catching chores. In the outfield the Lions had three fleet-footed boys in Joe Call, Willie Levin, and Wayne Clifford.

The Lions entered an all around team in the Dorsey tournament but were put out in the second round by Gardena.

After completing a fairly successful practice season, the Colonials entered the newly formed City-League and completed the season with six wins and five defeats, a record good enough to merit a tie for third place with four other teams.

The Lions first encountered Riis on Van Cleve field and took the measure of the Vikings, 2 to 0. Nothing happened until the sixth inning when Jim Hardy smashed out a double with one on to tally the first score. Pitching his first league game for Fairfax, Lee Howard collared the Riis batsmen with five hits.

In their second contest the Lions eked out a 6 to 5 win over the Hamilton Yankees in a thrilling contest. The Lions, trailing 5 to 4 in the last of the seventh inning, rallied for two runs on a perfectly executed squeeze play. Again Lee Howard was the winning pitcher, relieving Al Yaylian.

Playing their first city league game away from home the Colonials were defeated 2 to 0 by the Dorsey Dons, the eventual City-League winners. The inability of the Lions to hit the Dorsey pitching proved their downfall.

After Al Yaylian had pitched no-hit ball for five innings, the Colonials committed eight errors in the next two frames, and the Bell Eagles downed the Lions 2 to 0 on the Bell diamond.

Returning home the Lions started a three game winning streak by defeating the University Warriors, 9 to 4. All of the Colonial nine contributed to this victory with every man but two getting hits.

The Colonials' next contest was against the highly favored and undefeated Venice nine. Again the Lions came out on top with a 4 to 1 victory. The complete mastery that Al Yaylian had over the Venice sluggers accounts for the Lions' win. Yaylian pitched a three hit ball game in winning his first league victory for the Colonials.

After baffling the Venice Gondoliers, Yaylian returned to the mound and pitched one of his best games of the year, beating the Fremont Pathfinders 3 to 2. Going into the seventh inning with a 2 to 0 lead, Yaylian allowed two runs to score and then, with bases loaded and one out, retired the next two batsmen. Then the Colonial first sacker, Don Hardy, slashed out a double, advanced to third on a sacrifice, and stole home with the winning run. This victory put the Colonials in first place in the city league.

Over-confidence on the part of the Lions proved their downfall when the Hollywood shieks beat the Colonials 7 to 1.

The next game on the Lions' schedule was with the Jefferson Democrats and was lost by the Lions 2 to 1 in 15 innings. This game was termed the best prep baseball game of the year by sportswriters of the city. Al Yaylian, Colonial moundsman, set the Demos down with five hits in thirteen innings when he was relieved. It remained til the fifteenth inning for any scoring to be done in the ball game. The Lions opened their half with one tally but had their spirits shaken when, with two outs, Jefferson counter-attacked with two runs to win the ball game.

In their next engagement the Lions took advantage of nine Huntington Park errors to defeat the Spartans 8 to 3 for the Colonials' final league victory. This game marked Lee Howard's fourth win of the season for the Lions.

Playing their final league contest against their traditional rivals, the Los Angeles Romans, the Colonials were upset 6 to 1.

At the conclusion of the season the Colonials elected left-fielder Willie Levin to the honored position of captain.

Taking one glance at the batting averages of the entire team it can easily be seen why the Lions finished no higher in the final standings than they did. They received good pitching but the men at bat couldn't produce in the pinches.

Thirteen boys were awarded letters at the end of the season. These were: Jim Hardy, Don Hardy, Joe Call, Fred Berry, George Western, Willie Levin, Wayne Clifford, Preston Hill, Lee Howard, Al Yaylian, Syl Zimmerman, Harry Rouse, and Wally Hood.

Greeting the newcomers to the Fairfax baseball teams Coach Jim Fleming prepared to face the city competition.

With such excellent performers as Dick Baker, Bill Scott, Bill Ripling and Craig Boorey in the lineup the Lions started their five game schedule.

The Lions completed a fair season with a record of three wins and two losses.

The Lions defeated University 1 to 0, Los Angeles 11 to 3, and Hollywood 7 to 4, while they lost to Inglewood 12 to 4, and Huntington Park 3 to 2.

At the end of the season eleven boys were awarded letters. They were Craig Boorey, Dick Baker, Bill Scott, Bill Ripling, Bill Bernie, Jim Wagner, Art Olson, Tony Scarcelli, Buzz Knudsen, Bob Briles, and Joe Bran.

The Class Bee team serves as sort of a farm team for the varsity nine, sending many boys up during the season.

Probably the best find of the season was little Syl Zimmerman, a 132 lb. Bee Catcher, who handles the position behind the plate as easily as a veteran.

A Track

With the prospect of having to build an entire new team, Coach Keith Lloyd set about the task of molding a varsity track team to represent Fairfax in the coming meets.

Three returning lettermen greeted Coach Lloyd on the opening day of practice. Johnny Beauchamp, sprinter, broad jumper and high jumper; Mike Barr, a sprinter, and Bob Burns, a 440 and middle distance man.

However, several Bee and Cee lettermen lightened Coach Lloyd's burden a great deal. Bee Letterman Orlin Brees filled in the pole vault. Bee letterman Ralph Barbee and Cee letterman George O'Brien were slated for the hurdles, and Bee Sprinter Bill Barlow moved up to varsity berths.

Hampered by ol Jupe Pluvius the Lions squad rounded slowly into shape and engaged Hollywood High in their first practice meet with the Shieks copping the contest.

O'Brien topping the hurdles.

However, this loss didn't tear down the Lions morale too much when they upset a favored Venice spike crew 57½ to 41½ in their first league meet. Bob McKee was high point man for the Lions when he won the shot put and tied for first in the high jump to account for nine points.

Traveling to Dorsey for their second track engagement the Lions were set back by the Dons 66½ to 37½ on the Don's oval. The Lions ran up against surprise competition from the Dons and gained only three first places all by one man. Colonial Johnny Beauchamp, nabbed off first in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes and then leaped 21 feet 3 inches to win the broad jump.

The next three meets in a row proved setbacks to the Lions. First the Hamilton Yankees took the measure of the Colonials 60 7-10 to 36 3-10. A win by Bob Burns in the 880 yard run and Johnny Beauchamp's first in the broad jump were the Colonials' only firsts.

The Lions were next dropped by a strong Roman track team from Los Angeles High 62¾ to 36¼ on Van Cleve field. Surprise of the day was Colonial Ralph Logan's second in the mile. This was Logan's first attempt at running this distance. Johnny Beauchamp turned in his best sprint mark of the year when he ran the 100 yd. dash in 10.1s.

The last dual meet of the season for the Lions was against the University Warriors and the University cindermen won this tussel 63 to 41. Only one Lion performer, Johnny Beauchamp, could out-do his Warrior opponents to gain an individual first place. Beauchamp leaped 21 ft. 10 in. in the broad jump in winning this event. However, Ralph Logan, tied for first in the mile in 4:49.4s with a University miler, as did Orlin Brees in the pole vault with a jump of 11 feet.

B-C Track

Starting the season with only one returning letterman, Coach Keith Lloyd rounded together a Class Cee track team that placed second in the league.

The Lions won 3 meets and lost 2. The midgets defeated Venice, Los Angeles and University while losing to Dorsey and Hamilton.

Outstanding performer on the midget team was Mark Brownstein, 50 yard dash man. He was undefeated through the entire year in this event and had a time of 5.7s.

The Lion 4-man 440 yard relay team made up of Seymour Skolnick, Sandy Nessel, Mark Brownstein and Kenny Tipton, set a new school relay mark of 46.9s running in competition against Los Angeles.

Seven men received letters at the conclusion of the year. These were Mark Brownstein, Seymour Skolnick, sprinters and broad jump men, Sandy Nessel, sprinter and shot putter, Bob Perry, Kenney Tipton and Bob Green, field event men.

Western League Champions

With the services of three returning lettermen, Cliff Ettein, Fay Alexander and Bert Mayer counted on to help, Coach George Rynearson set out to complete his gym team in preparation for the coming meets.

For the purpose of rounding his gymnasts into shape, Coach Rynearson scheduled several practice meets in which the Lions were victorious in every case.

Finishing in second place in the League dual meet finals proved no mental setback for the Lions as they copped the Western League finals from the Hamilton Yankees scoring 38 points to the Yankee's 35½.

From winning the Western League crown the Colonial musclemen went on to place second in the City meet with 15 points. All of these points were made by three boys. Cliff Ettein provided an upset by winning first in the high bar and then took third place on the long horse. Hymie Arnesty who set a new school record in the rope climb of 6 seconds flat placed second in the city finals and Seymour Ostrow nabbed third place in the side horse.

At the conclusion of the season 11 boys were awarded letters. These were Cliff Ettein, Bob Hahn, Hymie Arnesty, Fay Alexander, Bert Mayer, Jerry Polonsky, Seymour Ostrow, Morrie Henkin, Louis Busch, Richy Feinstein and Al Homer.

Tennis

Having all the previous year's varsity tennis team, eight boys, return, Coach Hugh Welsh set about getting the boys in shape for the coming league matches.

Due to the amount and quality of material, the Lions were established as pre-season favorites to cop the Western League crown. However, the faculty axe cut a deep wound into this prognostication when the Colonials' second and fourth men were declared ineligible.

The team was composed of Jack Howard, playing first singles, Bob Falkenberg, second singles, Bill Galloway playing third singles, Don Harris competing at fourth singles, and Bob Brunish playing fifth singles. The first doubles were made up of Ed Graftstein and Gerald Shaw with Phil Dougherty and Ellis Zack playing second doubles.

The Lions swept through their pre-season practice matches without the loss of one team match.

In league competition the Lions won all matches except those with the Los Angeles Romans and finished second in league competition with four wins and one loss.

Girls' Athletic Association

Offering opportunity both to the excellent sports-girl and to the girl who wishes to improve her playing, the G.A.A. of Fairfax, sponsored by Miss Dorothy Wilson, is popular with everyone and is a means by which girls may serve their school and at the same time earn honors. G.A.A. members have a choice of several sports, and meet twice a week after school to play Volleyball; Virginia Harrison and Lorraine baseball, tennis, volleyball, hockey, speedball, archery, or badminton.

Membership is entirely voluntary; anyone who wishes to join is welcomed into the organization. After a girl has attended G.A.A. regularly for three semesters, she may earn her letter, and for each additional semester of attendance she receives a star. In six semesters, each girl has a chance to earn one letter and three stars, for which she is honored at the regular Honor Assembly. For the girls who have received letters, Miss Wilson sponsors a Letter Girls' Club, which elects a president to act as a member of the G.A.A. Board. This organization is entirely separate from the G.A.A. and is a social group.

The G.A.A. Board is the administrative body of the Association. Those on the board for the W'41 term were Mary Louise Phillips, President; Adeline Horgan, Vice-President; Cailin Campbell, Corresponding Secretary; Helen Weight, Recording Secretary; Jackie Gibney, Treasurer; Barbara Dodge, Historian; Mary MacTague, Commissioner Girls' Athletics; Evelyn Oglivie and Orline Colquhoun, Heads of Speedball; Jean Stier and Lillianne Dallons, Heads of Basketball; Marian Foster, Head of Volleyball; Virginia Harrison and Lorraine Nahas, Heads of Tennis; Doreen Bayley and Doreen Gleason, Heads of Deck Sports; Natalie Davydiuk, President Letter Girls' Club; Jo Lou Duckett, G.A.A. Reporter; Emerance Smyth, Head Yell Leader.

Several times each semester the Fairfax G.A.A. teams go to other schools to take part in playdays. Playdays are highly anticipated by everyone because of the novelty of seeing different schools and because of the keen competition that is met there. The first one on the calendar for the fall term was the Hallowe'en Playday held at Van Nuys High School. Jean Stier handled the second which was the Fairfax Basketball Playday. The big event of the winter semester was the playday held at Fairfax on January 14, the theme being that of a movie studio. A thrilling melodrama, written and directed by Cailin Campbell, carried out the theme effectively, the production's leading characters being portrayed by presidents of visiting G.A.A.'s.

At the close of the fall semester, the semi-annual banquet was given, with a wild west rodeo as the theme. All the G.A.A. members decked out in cowboy outfits made the affair most colorful and one of the most successful ever staged.

The Spring term was even busier for the G.A.A. than was the W'41 term. This term's Board consisted of Jackie Gibney, President; Lillianne Dallons, Vice-President; Barbara Dodge, Corresponding Secretary; Doreen Bayley, Recording Secretary; Marian Foster, Treasurer; Doreen Gleason, Historian; Cailin Campbell, Commissioner of Girls' Athletics; Marilyn Collins and Lois Poe, Heads of Baseball; Pat Rooney and Louise Teel, Heads of Basketball; Betty Jean Smith, Head of Volleyball; Lillian Arluck and Shirley Fields, Heads of Tennis; Pat Ballou and Lore Feder, Heads of Deck Sports; Maureen Marohn, President Letter Girls' Club; Orline Colquhoun, G.A.A. Under the leadership of these officers, the G.A.A. accomplished a great deal. Most important of these accomplishments was the establishing of a point system. This system has no connection with the participation credits, which will be awarded as usual, and enables those girls with outstanding athletic ability to win extra laurels. For every two hundred points earned, a crimson and gold chevron, to be worn on the sleeve of the Letter Girl sweater, is awarded. Three chevrons are the most a girl may win during her three high school years. At the end of each semester, the girl who has proved herself the best athlete among the graduating seniors by having the highest total of points is honored, her name being engraved on a plaque which has been purchased by the G.A.A. and which will be kept as a permanent memento. As a token of her achievement, the girl receives a small cup with her name engraved upon it.

Three important playdays marked the G.A.A. Spring activity list, one being held at Marshall High, one at Los Angeles High, and the Fairfax Volleyball Playday being capably directed by Betty Jean Smith. In each case, Fairfax made an excellent showing, with many victories and few defeats.
